ELDERLY COUPLE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

SHIP ON WEST INDIES REEF; 976 ABOARD

Liner Rotterdam on Southern Cruise Pounds on Coral Sixty Miles Southeast of Kingston, Jamaica, as Ss. Ariguani Rushes to Take Off Passengers

Voyagers Total 450 And Crew 526

Associated Press
New York, Sept. 30.—The Ss. Ariguani, rushing to the aid of the grounded Rotterdam, was due to reach the Holland-American liner around 4 p.m., E.S.T., to-day and take off her passengers.

From the Ariguani came word the 21,000-ton Rotterdam—which went aground at 2 a.m. to-day on Morant Cays, sixty miles southeast of Kingston, Jamaica, while carrying 976 persons, including 450 passengers—was pounding slightly on the coral reef. Her hold was leaking.

At 1:30 p.m., E.S.T., the master of the Ariguani messaged The Associated Press:

"Arriving 4 p.m. Morant Cays to take passengers off tourist Dutch steamer Rotterdam. Tanks one, two, three, four leaking. Ship pounding slightly."

An hour earlier Captain J. Van Duken had informed The Associated Press:

"Weather fine. Passengers will be transferred to Ss. Ariguani to Kingston."

Captain Van Duken, in earlier messages, had said all was calm aboard the liner and there was no immediate danger.

TAKING ON CARGO
The Ss. Ariguani—owned in Belfast with the Cunard Line as agents in this country—was loading at Kingston for England when the distress call from the Rotterdam was received. She put out to the rescue under instructions from the Cunard offices in New York.

The rescue ship has passenger space for only 120, but has sufficient deck room to remove all the Rotterdam's passengers to Kingston.

PASSENGERS TOTAL 450
The Holland-American Line offices here said around 450 passengers were aboard, with a crew of 526. There were at least eight Canadian passengers aboard, all from Montreal.

In the forenoon, Captain Van Duken made an effort to float the Rotterdam off the reef, but this was unsuccessful.

The line's offices here expressed fullest confidence in Captain Van Duken. He is fifty-two years old, a native of Rotterdam and has been with the line for thirty-five years.

The Rotterdam was bound into Kingston on the return to New York from a West Indies cruise. Leaving New York September 21, she steamed south to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, then down to La Guayra, Venezuela. From La Guayra, the ship put into Willemstad on the island of Curacao.

Morant Cay is due south of the treacherous Windward Passage between Cuba and Haiti.

SUN RECORD IS BROKEN

September's Sunshine Best Since 1881; Yesterday Was Warmest September 29

Victoria this month broke all records for September for the last forty-two years in the matter of sunshine and yesterday was the warmest September 29 in local history. It was shown in the monthly weather report issued this morning by F. Napier Denison, superintendent of the Meteorological Observatory on Gonzales Hill.

Excluding to-day, which will probably add another eight hours of sunshine, there were 260 hours and forty-two minutes of sunshine for September. This is fifty-eight hours above the average for the month and breaks by forty-two minutes the record of sunshine set in September, 1922.

SCENE OF CRASH AND ITS VICTIMS

JAPAN WARSHIPS SENT TO SWATOW

Associated Press
London, Sept. 30.—The Tokyo correspondent of Reuters reported to-day that seven Japanese destroyers were being rushed to the Chinese port of Swatow in view of trouble which arose over taxation imposed by the Chinese on Japanese goods.

The top picture, taken by Detective Henry Jarvis, shows the scene of the accident at Hillside Avenue and Blackwood Street yesterday afternoon which resulted in the death of Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. McCarter (shown in the lower picture), and injuries to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bird and their three daughters. The Bird car is shown on the right of the picture after it had been righted after turning over the four-foot embankment. The car driven by Frank Findlay is shown as it lay on its side on the north-west curb after the crash. Parts of both cars are seen strewn all over the sidewalk. Additional picture on page 12.

STORM ALARM IN BERMUDA

Hurricane Approaching Island; Property Losses at Bimini

Associated Press
Miami, Fla., Sept. 30.—Bermuda, British island playground of the wealthy, to-day was alarmed as a tropical hurricane approached after devastating Bimini without loss of life.

Bermuda expects the storm to strike—or skirt the island—early to-night.

Hamilton, Bermuda, reported the tropical disturbance still of considerable intensity. At 8 o'clock this morning it was 150 miles west-southwest of the island and moving at twenty-five miles an hour.

The Monarch of Bermuda, which arrived this morning from New York with 400 passengers, hove to off St. George's to discharge passengers rather than attempt the narrow channel to Hamilton.

Young Boy Has Neck Fractured

Gordon Dalby Thrown From Bicycle; Six Young People in Car Hit Boulder

In a series of accidents over the week-end, two persons were injured and six narrowly escaped injury, in addition to the crash at Hillside and Blackwood Avenues in which two persons were killed and five injured.

Seventeen-year-old Gordon Dalby, 1325 Minto Street, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from a fractured neck, sustained when he was knocked off his bicycle on Yates Street on Saturday morning.

According to a report received by police late Saturday from the boy's family, he was cycling west on Yates Street shortly before 10 o'clock when he was struck by a truck backing out from a parking space, driven by a Chinaman.

Gordon is a carrier of The Times. He is being attended by Dr. A. C. Sinclair.

YOUNG PEOPLE ESCAPE

Six young people, in an early model sedan, narrowly escaped injury when they collided with a huge boulder while driving down Gonzales Hill on King George Terrace, about 8:30 o'clock yesterday evening.

The driver of the car was Roy W. Burgess, Wilkinson Road. One girl suffered a cut leg which necessitated stitching at the Jubilee Hospital.

Francis R. Findlay, 2619 Blanshard Street, Arrested as Driver of Car in Collision Sunday With Machine Containing Seven Passengers; Mrs. E. W. Bird, Dysart Road, Wages Battle For Life; Ernest W. Bird and Three Daughters in Hospital

BOTH MACHINES TOTAL WRECKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Y. McCarter, an elderly couple, of 1130 Summit Avenue, were killed, and five persons were injured, one critically, in one of the worst traffic accidents in the city's history yesterday afternoon at the corner of Hillside Avenue and Blackwood Street.

Mrs. E. W. Bird, 2623 Dysart Road, is waging a desperate battle for her life in the Jubilee Hospital.

Arling out of the accident police to-day arrested twenty-one-year-old Francis R. Findlay, 2619 Blanshard Street, on a charge of manslaughter.

The injured are:

Mrs. E. W. Bird, fractured pelvis, ruptured bladder and broken ribs.
Ernest W. Bird of the Begg Motor Company, fractured collarbone, fractured ribs and possible fracture of the pelvis.
Marjorie Bird, fifteen, fractured pelvis.
Joan Bird, eight, general cuts and bruises.

Elizabeth Bird, three, general cuts and bruises about the body. All are patients in the Jubilee Hospital, where they are being attended by Dr. Gordon Kenning.

Francis Findlay escaped with no major injuries, suffering minor cuts and abrasions and a slaking up.

COMING FROM CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. McCarter were passengers in the Bird car, returning from church to the home of Dr. Alexander McCarter, when the collision occurred. The Birds and the elderly couple attended the same church and it was customary for Mr. Bird to drive Mr. and Mrs. McCarter home.

Mr. Bird was driving north on Blackwood Street, shortly after 12:30 o'clock and as he passed through the intersection, his car was in collision with the machine driven by Mr. Findlay and owned by Gordon H. Simpson of the B.C. Coast Service, proceeding west on Hillside Avenue.

After the impact the Bird car traveled across the sidewalk at the northwest corner of the intersection and turned on its side as it slid over a four-foot bank.

The Findlay car came to rest on its side against the northwest curb.

CARS WRECKED
Both cars were sedans and were totally wrecked.

Witnesses stated Mr. Findlay had a miraculous escape from injury. The police report of the accident follows:

"... Frank Findlay, 2619 Blanshard Street, was driving auto 10664 west on Hillside Avenue and collided with auto 6819 driven north on Blackwood Street by E. W. Bird, 2623 Dysart Road. This car (the Bird)

LIBERALS PLAN PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION

WELFARE HEAD TO VANCOUVER

Dr. G. F. Davidson Leaves Provincial Service in December

Dr. George F. Davidson, who just a year ago took over the position of superintendent of welfare for British Columbia, will terminate his engagement with the government on December 1, to take over the directorship of the Vancouver Welfare Federation.

Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, announced this morning that Dr. Davidson would leave the provincial service.

In this connection he referred to criticism of Dr. Davidson's appointment last year, stating he had since fully justified the confidence shown in him and had more than lived up to expectations. Dr. Davidson had a brilliant academic record and is a native son of British Columbia. His removal to the important post in Vancouver would be a serious loss to the provincial welfare branch, the minister said.

As yet a successor has not been chosen to Dr. Davidson in the provincial service, Dr. Weir said.

When Returned to Power October 14 Party Will Go "Much Farther Than Ever Before," Leader Mackenzie King Tells Big Vancouver Audience

Leader to Speak in Calgary To-night

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Liberal Leader Mackenzie King is speeding through the Rock Mountains to-day after leaving a declaration of Liberal policy with the province of British Columbia. He will speak this evening at Calgary, his second and last appearance in Alberta.

Before a Vancouver audience of between 9,000 and 10,000 Saturday evening Mr. King declared himself a "radical at heart." The reason he did not seem to be as radical as he would like to appear was because of his sense of responsibility which prevented him from making promises to which the whole Liberal Party was not committed and the fulfillment of which he could not guarantee.

He urged the people of Vancouver to send Mayor G. G. McGeer with his advanced views on monetary matters to Parliament.

If the Liberal Party was returned to power it would undertake much more in the way of advanced legislation than ever before.

Another feature of Mr. King's speech was his announcement that one of the first acts of a Liberal government would be to call the provincial governments into conference and evolve a uniform mining policy for Canada.

He also said the Liberals proposed to restore trade with Japan, but "not to the risk of any Canadian business."

TREKKERS' SONGS CLEARED BY COURT

Canadian Press
Montreal, Sept. 30.—Songs chanted by Montreal unemployed in their "On-to-Ottawa" march early this summer did not fall within terms of the Criminal Code as "seditious intention," Mr. Justice C. A. Wilson ruled in the court of King's Bench here to-day.

He instructed a jury to return a verdict acquitting seven of the marchers. "Going to Ottawa is a perfectly peaceful pursuit," commented the court in rendering judgment. "It seems a good many people want to go there."

"Decuplet" Carrot, Twin Marrow, Triplet Zinnia, Queer Marigold

Five More Freaks Reported to News Room of The Times To-day

Twin marrows, triplet zinnias and cosmos, double gallardias, twisted carrots with seven to ten roots, and marigolds with buds springing from dying flowers were among the freaks brought up the news room of The Victoria Daily Times to-day.

Evidence of the truth of old Moore's prediction of queer happenings in the plant world this year is piling up to such an extent that The Times has prepared an exhibition of some of the less palatable freaks in one of the lower windows.

The quintuplet carrot which A. J. Simpson pulled out of his garden a few days ago has been beaten by E. B. Mitchell of 1662 King's Road, who brought up half a dozen carrots which ranged all the way from "quadruplets" to "decuplets."

The roots of the carrots were twisted and distorted. One which had seven roots was at least eight inches long.

Deer With Wool Coat Is Reported

Cowichan Lake Freak Has Part Covering Like a Sheep

Reports of freaks of nature has extended to the animal world. Over the week-end a resident of Cowichan Lake district shot and killed a sizeable spike deer, which had, instead of the coarse hair which makes up the deer's coat, a soft, fine woolly grey fur, not unlike the softness of the wool produced by sheep.

The only hair the deer had was a four-inch strip down the centre of the back, but this also lacked coarseness. It was fine and silky. The sides and belly wore a fine woolly fur, with a few very fine hairs intermingling.

British-French Leaders Explore Sanctions Moves

London Asks Paris If France Will Join in Measures Against Italy If That Country's Forces Invade Ethiopia

Associated Press
Paris, Sept. 30.—A French official to-day said "Great Britain had asked 'specific questions' of France regarding this nation's action in 'specific cases that might arise' in connection with application of sanctions under the League of Nations covenant.

Great Britain, it was indicated, has asked France if she is ready to join in sanctions against Italy in the event that Premier Mussolini's forces invade Ethiopia in disregard of the League's recommendations.

Officials said France automatically would be obliged by the League covenant to take sanctions against Italy if that nation made an "unprovoked attack" against Great Britain while Great Britain was carrying out orders of the League.

NOTE RECEIVED

The French government received to-day a British note, reaffirming allegiance to the League of Nations, and called it "very satisfactory."

Orient Man Buys Portland Island

Portland Island, formerly the country estate of Brigadier-General "One-Armed" Sutton, famed for his exploits in China, has been sold to a business man from the Orient.

The island, which is in the Gulf of Georgia and twenty miles from Victoria, comprises 700 acres, 100 of which are cultivated. There is an eight-roomed master's house and other accommodation and barns. General Sutton was developing it as a great stud farm for the breeding of fast horses to carry his colors on the race courses of this continent.

The new owner will retire from the Orient in two years, coming here to make it his permanent home. He will erect a large stone residence on the island and develop it as a country estate.

NOMINATIONS FILED TO-DAY

In Seventy-six Commons Constituencies Official Listing Is Done; Remainder Will Nominate Next Monday

Winnipeg, Sept. 30.—Two party leaders were away from their own constituencies when official nomination day proceedings took place there to-day.

Liberal Leader Mackenzie King scheduled to speak in Calgary this evening, could not be present when nominations closed in Prince Albert, Sask., at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Hon. H. M. Stevens, head of the Reconstruction Party, is in Ontario, far from his British Columbia constituency of Kootenay East. Prince Albert and Kootenay East are two of the seventy-six ridings in which advance nominations were held to-day. The remainder of the 245 constituencies will hold official nominations October 7, one week before.

Rush Aid to Man Who Fell In Canyon

Party Organized at Sicamous to Assist Vernon Angler Critically Hurt at Yard Creek

Canadian Press
Sicamous, B.C., Sept. 30.—Hurried preparations were made to-day for a rescue party to rush to the relief of Richard P. Locke of Vernon, B.C., who lies critically injured in the canyon of Yard Creek, about twelve miles east of here.

Locke was on a fishing trip yesterday with two companions when he fell over a rock bluff. His fellow fishermen, George McNeil and Howard Urquhart, attempted to carry Locke to the roadside two miles away, but, owing to his apparently serious condition and the rugged nature of the country, they were forced to seek help.

Provincial Constable Wolfe and Forest Ranger James Fraser went to the scene of the accident, but found further aid was necessary. They returned for additional men to form a rescue party.

Locke suffered severe head injuries and probable internal injuries in the fall. He is an employee of the British Columbia tree fruit marketing board.

British-French Leaders Explore Sanctions Moves

Quarters close to the government welcomed the reply handed by Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, to an inquiry as to possible British participation in sanctions against any European aggressor in the future.

Government officials counted on its assurance that Great Britain stands "for steady and collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression" to strengthen French public opinion for a firm stand in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

Spokesmen for government circles said they welcomed the British Foreign Secretary's distinction in possible usage in Article XVI of the League covenant, leading to punitive measures against unprovoked aggression.

Associated Press

London, Sept. 30.—Great Britain's dictum, "if risks for peace are to be run, they must be run by all," ushered in to-day an eventful week, with the cabinet and two major political parties discussing sanctions.

Meanwhile Premier Mussolini's week-end "olive branch," held forth in an Italian cabinet communiqué, was regarded in British circles as another of a long series of strategic attempts by the Italian dictator to delay proceedings at Geneva and to avoid League of Nations action.

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Foreign Secretary, affirmed the government's unwavering fidelity to the League, however, in a note sent yesterday evening to France.

Reports from Paris that the British note gained a "very satisfactory" reception on the Quai d'Orsay were welcomed here as solidifying French support for Britain's decision concerning sanctions against Italy in the event of an Italo-Ethiopian war.

Authoritative British quarters rejected any interpretation of the note, however, as binding Britain to France against any specific hostile threat in the future—notably from Germany.

QUESTION OF FAILURE

The British note made clear three points:

1. That mere failure by Germany or any other nation to fulfill treaties regarding armaments or boundaries did not call for sanctions under the League covenant.
2. That sanctions only "applied to positive actions of unprovoked aggression."
3. That Great Britain kept an open mind towards demands of any defeated power for treaty revision, insisting "elasticity is a part of security."

Sir Samuel reiterated, nevertheless, the assurance already given to Geneva that Great Britain stands "for steady and collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression."

Bennett Tells Of Trade Talks

Says His Ministry's Negotiations With U.S. Cover 700 Commodities

Winnipeg, Sept. 30.—Premier Bennett, addressing a campaign meeting here Saturday evening, discussed his government's wheat policy and touched on his administration's trade negotiations with the United States.

He said Mr. King had criticized him for delay in seeking a trade agreement with the United States.

"My friends, I cannot hurry the Congress of the United States," he said. "It was only a year ago last June the United States President had been empowered to negotiate."

"And they say it is only a piffling agreement we propose, that it is insignificant," said Mr. Bennett. "If that treaty goes through it would lessen the customs duties on imports from the United States on the present basis of trade by nearly $6,000,000, involving 700 commodities."

WHEAT PLANS

Dealing with grain, Mr. Bennett said there were merchants within sound of his voice, he said, "whose account books are black and not red because the government had placed the cotton-ginners of the entire country behind the wheat industry."

ANSWERS QUESTIONER

To someone in the gallery who intimatedly shouted questions, Mr. Bennett stated he would gladly answer them.

"For the same reason you are not," replied the Prime Minister, "and probably for better reasons. Here," he added, "is a man standing in a Winnipeg audience asking why a man is not in jail without trial or hearing."

It is a result of statements by men like Stevens misleading people like my poor friend down there who asks this question."

SCORES STEVENS

Opposition parties offered no constructive plan for the betterment of Canada, Mr. Bennett declared. Of the new party led by Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Trade and Commerce Minister, Mr. Bennett said: "I have just come from Vancouver and recommended the leader of that party put his own house in order before he goes about telling other people how to run their business."

OTHER NATIONS' VIEWS

Vienna, Sept. 30.—The newspaper Die Stunde to-day asserted nations such as Austria, which have reason to fear aggression by their neighbors, will find little comfort in the declaration by Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, that "steady obligations should be somewhat elastic. Officials did not comment."

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS

They are: Comox-Alberni, Cariboo, Kamloops, Kootenay East, Kootenay West, Skeena, Vancouver North and West.

Not a single nomination was in sight across Canada as the nominations were made to-day, indicating the unusual interest being taken in the poll.

Of course, there is still the chance some candidates may be unopposed by October 16. A candidate may withdraw after nomination by filing a declaration in writing with the returning officer.

In all the other ridings the official nominations will be made October 7, next Monday.

Signatures of ten qualified voters are required on the papers and they must be witnessed by someone who takes an affidavit to the witnessing.

Another necessity is the $200 cash deposit. This is returned to the candidate if he receives half as many votes as the winner.

No property qualifications are required to be a member of the House of Commons. The candidate "must be twenty-one years of age, resident of Canada and a British subject not disqualified by law." The election act is drastic in its disqualification of anyone who has been guilty of bribery or any other offence in connection with a previous election.

Judges, senators and government employees cannot run for the House.

Once the nominations are made, while some candidates may withdraw, no substitutions may be made except in case of a candidate's death, when the returning officer has to fix another nomination day.

Election machinery will swing into action as soon as the official nominations can be rushed in to headquarters. Ballots will be printed, boxes allotted and the job of distributing them commenced. Airplanes will be used to get ballots to some of the remote polling stations of the northwest.

Tuesday at Lake Hill, Don Smith and Miss Osterhout speak for J. S. Taylor, C.P.F. candidate for Nanaimo.

Rome, Sept. 30 (Canadian Press from Havas).—The death of Alighiero Castellani, director of the Montreal newspaper L'Action, was announced here to-day. He had only recently arrived in Rome from Canada.

Seattle, Sept. 30.—Old Sol brought Seattle a temperature of 80.4 degrees Saturday afternoon for the warmest September 28 in forty-three years.

At that time, the temperature was only six-tenths of a degree below the record of eighty-one set in 1892. M. P. Bergerson, assistant to Meteorologist Lawrence C. Fisher, said, Saturday's maximum was about 3 o'clock.

This month's warm weather rivals the autumn of 1922, which was the warmest in years. The temperature October 4, 1922, was eighty-two degrees.

machine) drove over the sidewalk and down a four-foot bank and turned over on its side.

Police stated there were several eyewitnesses.

All possible medical aid was rushed to the scene of the crash, police handling the injured and controlling the large amount of traffic, while the C. & C. ambulance removed Mr. McCarter to the hospital.

Mrs. McCarter and the other injured were taken in the police ambulance.

Mrs. McCarter died shortly after being admitted to the hospital, and her husband passed away at 8:35 a.m. to-day. Both were eighty-three years of age.

DAUGHTER AT HOSPITAL

Miss Dorothy Bird, the eldest daughter of the family, is a nurse in training at the Jubilee Hospital, and was summoned from her duties as soon as the injured persons were brought in.

Francis Findlay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Findlay, 2619 Blanchard Street, and is manager of E. C. Bingham's service station at Hillside Avenue and Shelbourne Street.

Following his arrest at 12:30 o'clock, he appeared to face the formal arraignment of the charge in the city police court at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, after the information was sworn out by Police Chief Heatley this morning.

An inquest over the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. McCarter has been called by Dr. E. G. Hart, coroner, for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Home. It is probable the hearing will be adjourned.

COLORFUL CAREER

Mr. and Mrs. McCarter had been residents of Victoria for thirty-nine years. A host of local friends extended felicitations to them last year on the occasion of the celebration of their diamond wedding anniversary on August 30.

Born in Almont, Ont., on September 17, 1852, Mr. McCarter had a colorful career and one which was characteristic of the hardy Canadian pioneers. He took part in the transport service during the Riel Rebellion of 1885 and participated in many of the thrilling events of that campaign. He was married in 1878.

They came to Victoria from Moose Jaw in June, 1896, and the adventurous spirit of Mr. McCarter found expression in several trips into the Yukon in the early days of the Klondike rush. He was engaged in the construction of a line of three stern-wheelers for use on the Yukon, and on their completion went with them around Alaska, through the Behring Sea to St. Michael's and up the Yukon to Dawson and White Horse, returning on foot over the Chilkoot Pass to Skagway on his journey back to Victoria.

Another of his adventures was growing at White Horse for transporting merchandise to Dawson. These he placed in charge of several men from the trip down the river, but they never reached Dawson, being frozen in near Selkirk, and became a total loss.

In Victoria he built many houses, among which were several of the homes on Craigdarroch Road, being the first builder to "open up" that subdivision. He built and occupied for some time the home now owned by Judge Gregory. He also was interested in building and other enterprises in Vancouver.

Mrs. McCarter was the former Matilda McDonald. She was born in Brechin, Scotland, on July 15, 1862, and first came to Canada as a girl of seventeen. Five years after her arrival she married her husband at Wajleton, Ont., on August 31, 1874.

Surviving the elderly couple are three sons and two daughters, including: Dr. McCarter of Summit Avenue, with whom they resided; Dr. C. McCarter of Seattle, and L. B. Burr of New Westminster and Mrs. A. N. Robb of Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. McCarter were both members of the Victoria branch of the United Order of Good Templars.

Tariff Board Now Trade Commission

Becomes a Court Vested With Powers Under New and Old Acts to Negotiate
Business in Canada

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The Tariff Board to-morrow will take over its added duties as Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. Already several requests have been received relating to price fixing and regulation of production for the board's consideration.

In addition to hearing applications from industrialists relating to revisions of the tariff, and appeals against assessments imposed by the customs department, Chairman George H. Sedgewick and his colleagues, Milton N. Campbell and Charles Hebert, will constitute themselves a court vested with great powers for the regulation of business in Canada. No fewer than twenty-five acts of Parliament come within the compass of the board's operations. All have to deal with laws prohibiting unfair trade practices.

The board, it is understood, is ready to plunge into its new duties. Industrial groups throughout the country have consulted among themselves on matters relating to price fixing and the regulation of production. Their deliberations and recommendations have been communicated to the board and on these the board will begin its work.

Board, operating as the Trade and Industry Commission, will be to do so, TO REPORT TO CABINET

The commission has no authority to approve and legalize such practices. Its instructions from Parliament set forth that after due inquiry it shall report and make recommendations to the Governor-in-Council, that is, the cabinet. The duty will then be on the government to approve or disapprove the commission's recommendations, and, if approving, make the necessary regulations.

Practically every act of Parliament dealing with the proper conduct of business comes within the scope of the commission's operations. These range from the Agricultural Pests Control Act to the Weights and Measures Act.

The commission is empowered to investigate any question relating to commodity standards, the grading of commodities and the protection of the consumers generally. It may also hear representations relating to the establishment of new standards and grades.

The commission will hear and investigate complaints respecting unfair practices.

League Given Labor Support

New Zealand Party Leader
Expresses Views in Toronto

Associated Press
Toronto, Sept. 30.—Peter Fraser, deputy leader of the Labor Party in the New Zealand House of Representatives, said here yesterday evening he believed the recent resolution passed by the British Trades Union Conference backing the stand of the League of Nations in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, even to the use of economic and military sanctions, expressed the true feelings of all labor movements throughout the empire.

Mr. Fraser is returning home from England, where he participated in the Empire Parliamentary Association conference.

New Zealand, he said, had gained "a little" from the Ottawa trade agreements and conditions in that country generally were beginning to show a gradual but steady improvement.

REGINA RIOT INQUIRY URGED

Canadian Press
Kitchener, Ont., Sept. 30.—Appointment of a non-partisan commission to investigate the Regina riots of July 1 was asked by a meeting in the Workers' Unity League quarters here Saturday evening. The motion was passed after Arthur Evans, one of those arrested during the disturbance, had spoken on the causes of the unemployed trek from Vancouver to Regina.

Evans reiterated charges placing responsibility for the death of Detective Miller during the Regina riots on the police. He charged he had seen a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer beating a man lying on the ground. That man, he said, was Detective Miller.

R.C.M.P. and city police, he said, started and carried on the beating of the crowd of 2,500, in which there were only 250 or 300 relief strikers. They did so without provocation, he claimed.

DEAN HEARD ON SOCIAL CREDIT

Dr. H. Johnson of Canterbury
Expounds Views at Calgary Meeting

Canadian Press
Calgary, Sept. 30.—The system of international trade under which nations of the world were operating today was one which required the sending abroad of the bulk of goods they produced or facing the alternative of starvation and rebellion, Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, said in an address here Saturday evening.

This was the real cause of war, asserted the Dean, who is making a tour of Canada and the United States advocating social credit. He said there was no need for the League of Nations to talk about peace until it got down to removal of that situation.

The cure, he continued, was provided by the three fundamentals of social credit—restoration to the people of sovereign control over money, industry to be accommodated at all stages by finance as the servant, not the master, and sufficient money put into the pockets of people to buy as consumers what they made as producers.

Dr. Johnson declared he was not in Canada as a politician. "I place social credit far above politics and can see no need for Liberal, Conservative or Socialists to give up many of the theories they hold most dear even though they turn to social credit," he added.

In his heart he was a Socialist, in his head a Liberal and in his bones a Conservative, the Dean stated.

Premier Abernethy was on the platform with the speaker.

SUNDAY ADDRESS
Calgary, Sept. 30.—Premier Abernethy of Alberta speaking at his Prophetic Bible Institute yesterday answered charges in letters from "100 per cent" social crediters that he was "cooling off" in his attitude toward social credit.

The enormous amount of work required in reorganizing provincial departments and getting ready for introduction of social credit legislation kept him from taking part in the federal election campaign, Mr. Abernethy said.

The evangelist-economist declared it was only his opinion that Premier Bennett should not be opposed in Calgary West and now that a majority had decided a candidate should run "I am all for him and hope he will be elected."

DEAN SPEAKS
Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, and Brian Dunningham, leader of the social credit movement in New Zealand and acting now as honorary secretary to the Dean, who is touring North America in support of social credit, also spoke.

"It is encouraging to find the Alberta people look on social credit as a religious reform the same as is being done in New Zealand," Mr. Dunningham stated.

"Social credit is God's gift, not the financiers', and those opposed to it will fail because they left God out of their reckoning," the Dean declared.

QUEBEC AND AGE PENSIONS

Canadian Press
St. Gregoire, Montmorency County, Que., Sept. 30.—Premier Bennett promised in 1930 to pay full old-age pensions, but did not keep this promise, Premier Taschereau of Quebec stated here yesterday in his first entry into the Dominion election campaign.

"Mr. King said a few days ago that he will implement that promise if he is elected."

"We did not do wrong in refusing to pay our part (towards old-age pensions), because we have given $5,000,000 to public welfare."

"In any case," Mr. Taschereau continued, "if Mr. King does not keep his promise, we will pay our proportion just the same. If we had accepted the proportion offered by Mr. Bennett—a problematic proportion—we would perhaps have hindered the work of our public welfare institutions."

Quebec, he said, had asked Premier Bennett to give the province its proportion of the old-age pension fund, so this money could be used for public welfare, but Mr. Bennett refused.

Prof. J. King Gordon, C.C.F. candidate, and C. Grant MacNeil of Vancouver, will address a public meeting at the Chamber of Commerce to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. MacNeil, who is the provincial secretary of the C.C.F., was for some years Dominion secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, and a special invitation has been extended to all members of local ex-service men's organizations to attend this meeting, where seats are being reserved for them for this occasion.

Trade Higher, Says Plunkett

Conservative Candidate
Supports "Tariff For Tariff"
Policy of Bennett

"We want a leader, who will meet tariff with tariff, not one who will permit another country to throw bricks at Canada and not retaliate," declared D. B. Plunkett, Conservative candidate in Victoria riding, at a meeting in the Campbell Building Saturday night when he sought to answer Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, on the subject of trade.

Mr. Plunkett said Mr. King refused to recognize the signs of returning prosperity as they are shown in figures issued by the Bureau of Statistics.

These figures, said the candidate, proved that Canada's trade was increasing under the Bennett policies. The empire trade posts had played a large part in this increase and showed up in strong contrast to the "do-nothing" policy of the King administration previous to Mr. Bennett taking office.

The export trade of Canada in the twelve months ended July 1 had totaled $1,350,000,000, of which $400,000,000 was to Great Britain and $700,000,000 to foreign countries, he declared. The increase was $22,000,000, including a $42,000,000 increase in shipments to Great Britain and a $30,000,000 jump in exports to foreign countries.

SAYS RECOVERY COMING

In the light of these cold figures, it was apparent that Mr. King was misrepresenting the present position of Canada's trade, he argued. They definitely showed the Bennett methods were bringing about a recovery.

The Liberal leader's low tariff policy was based, he said, upon the belief that all the trading nations were altruistic and would lower their tariffs in Canada's favor when Canada lowered hers. This is the policy supposed to lead Canada out of the situation she is in today.

But, said the speaker, Canada would be hard to convince that it would work out. Canada knew she must meet tariffs with tariffs.

UNEMPLOYMENT PLAN

Another of Mr. King's proposals criticized by the candidate was his national commission on unemployment. This would be unwieldy, expensive and impractical, he argued. No better way of studying unemployment conditions could be found than by placing it in the hands of the various provincial governments, who were better able to judge conditions in their own localities.

Mr. Plunkett thought Mr. King had made a serious omission in not dealing with Section 96 at his meeting here. From this he judged the Liberal leader only cited his plan of abolishing this law when he thought it would win some votes. Knowing that Victoria was set against rescinding the clause he did not mention it here, said the speaker.

R. A. Woodson, the other speaker, likened Premier Bennett to a besom in a storm, shedding a ray of hope and guiding those who were lost in turbulent seas to safety. While he had not, like Mr. King, been able to shake hands with all the provincial premiers, he had met Mr. Bennett and was very favorably impressed with the leadership he had shown, said Mr. Woodson.

Mr. Plunkett was introduced to the meeting by Hugh Allen, president of the Victoria Conservative Association. J. E. Branson, president of Ward Three Conservative Association, which sponsored the meeting, turned the chairmanship over to E. W. Maynard, vice-president of the central association.

An entertainment programme was presented, including numbers by Robert Wornaligh, John Bell, Mrs. B. Noel and Clarence Kerchla, with Miss Shelle Conway as accompanist. Refreshments were served by the ladies' auxiliary.

Twenty days from San Francisco, the American schooner Allen sailed up to an anchorage off the outer wharf this morning and will be towed up to Chemainus mills to load lumber for Dutch Harbor.

Under the patronage of Lieut.-Governor Patterson and suite, and with the largest and most fashionable attendance at any Victoria Horse Show, the third annual event under the auspices of the B.C. Agricultural Society was opened last night by Hon. W. J. Bower, Minister of Agriculture, in a few congratulatory words.

MORE CRIME DURING 1934

Annual Provincial Police Report For Last Year Released To-day

The annual statistical report of the Commissioner of British Columbia Police, Colonel J. H. McMullin, for 1934, was released at the headquarters office Saturday.

The report, a complete statement of crime investigations by the department during the year and review of the activities of the various branches, with tables dealing with the amount of vehicular traffic on British Columbia highways.

Colonel McMullin reports an increase in serious crimes last year. There were ten murders actually committed within the jurisdiction of his department. Three remains unsolved including one in which a man was charged but dismissed for lack of evidence, and another in which the search is still being continued for the suspected murderer, the Indian, Seymour. Outstanding among these crimes was the murder of Constable P. Carr which resulted in the trial of four Indian brothers.

Under the motor vehicle department it is shown that licenses for 16,532 machines were issued in Victoria and 35,512 in Vancouver. Ford cars continued to lead the makes of the machines licensed.

COMMON DANGER LEADS

There were 3,758 convictions recorded against motorists for infractions of the Motor Vehicle Act. Of these 1,022 were for driving to the common danger, 517 for driving without a full license, 375 for exceeding the speed limit in school areas and 360 for failing to produce a driver's license on demand of a police officer.

There were 129 cancellations of driver's licenses for various reasons, the chief ones being driving to the common danger and driving while intoxicated.

One interesting table printed by the motor record department in that dealing with the number of accidents and injuries to persons involved.

This table shows there were 90,526 licensed vehicles in British Columbia. There were 3,192 accidents which resulted in seventy-eight deaths and injuries to 1,853 persons. The amount of property damage resulting was $219,932.

The percentage of accidents per motor vehicle was 33626 which was an increase over the percentage of 32267 for 1933. The percentage of deaths per motor vehicle was .000618, which was higher than in 1933 when the percentage was .0007792.

Sergeant J. Edward Wentworth of Salt Spring Island, one of the colored heroes of the war, suffered such permanent injuries when he was blown up by a shell while serving in this front line in France, that the courts here last winter granted him an extra $1,000 from the estate of his wife, Ella Wentworth, who died leaving a substantial amount to hospital and orphanage charities.

Saturday, J. P. Walls, counsel for Mr. Wentworth, appeared before Mr. Justice Robertson of the Supreme Court, and explained that the Salt Spring Island veteran is now in precarious circumstances, having exhausted the $1,000 given him a few months ago. He asked for a hearing on an additional contribution from the wife's estate, which had been built up to a considerable amount through shrewd speculation in Victoria realty before the war.

M. B. Jackson, K.C., appeared for the Lady Minto Hospital, and J. B. Clearhough for the orphanage and other beneficiaries.

The judge said he would arrange an early date when the court would go into the whole matter.

CHAPTER I

Two young men leaving an eastern army camp in the fall of 1917, both in a great hurry, both carrying suitcases and wearing on their collars the shining new bars of second lieutenant. Each muttered, "Pardon!" at the same time and hastened on his way. Each was about to be sent overseas. Each was going home first, for a brief visit with an adored wife and child. Each, during that visit, took on his knees his baby daughter and caressed her, and wondered if he would come back to the things he loved—home and wife and child.

Brian Chalmers, turning two-year-old Elaine back to her sedate English nurse, pulled one of the child's sunny curls teasingly. "Good-bye, Beautiful! You'll be asleep when I pull out in the morning. If I don't come back, don't take any wooden nickels or stepfathers!"

The child laughed with delight at the jolly, meaningless words her father said. She knew her father was a punger, tobacco-chewing, shaving-cream-smelling, and the rest of his lean, hard cheek against her own. She liked his big polished boots and funny belt that went around his waist and up over one shoulder. "By, Daddy!" she said, kissing him rapturously.

"She likes men," the child's mother drawled. She was a beautiful woman in a clinging sea-green negligee, with a face that was rather soft and petulant. "She's going to be man-hungry, that girl. A little witch. I'm already jealous of her."

The man drew his wife to the arm of his chair and buried his face in the scented lace of her negligee. "You like men, too," he accused. "If I'm blown to atoms over there you'll select the best-looking mourning in town. You'll wear it becomingly for a year, and the day you stop out of it you'll marry Higate Deal!"

"Darling!" she remonstrated. "Must you be spiteful about all the men who have nice safe jobs in Washington?"

"No," answered Brian Chalmers. "Only when they're your old drivers and still in love with you. Given, you'll take good care of Elaine, won't you?"

The woman's eyes opened in surprise. "What a thing to say to the child's own mother! Please remember, dear, that I love her, too. I put in hours and hours selecting her little frocks and toys."

"I know," the man nodded impatiently. "But I'm thinking of her character. Given, and things like that. I want her to grow up to be fine and straight and dependable. He paused uncertainly and lit a cigarette. "Lord! What do I want for her?" He looked after the lovely child as she toddled up the broad stairway, holding ling tightly to her nurse's hand. "I suppose I just want her to have anything in this world that will make her happy. Yes," he repeated it, rather like a prayer, "anything in the world that will make her happy."

The other young man was named George Woodson. He and his wife, Eleanor, were so beautifully and simply in love with each other that this short leave of his was like a bit of heaven in a sea of horror. Through every hour of its radiance sounded the relentless drum-beat of approaching separation, of submarine-infested seas, and a war to be fought.

They were restless in their love and foreboding. George said, "Let's walk along the river this evening. It's swell in October."

"I'd thought of a picnic supper there," Eleanor replied. "At the little cove where we used to go when we were engaged. But there's Baby Ruth, dear. She has a crampy cough and we shouldn't leave her. Mrs. Gary would come in to look after her, but I'm just afraid—do you mind terribly?"

"A crampy cough? Baby Ruth? A cold chicken and all the things you love—"

George Woodson took his wife in his arms. "Mind, dear? It doesn't matter to me where I am, just so you are near enough to touch. Tell me, Eleanor! If I don't come back, will you promise—"

Her dark eyes widened in pain and she quickly laid her hand over his mouth. "Don't say it!" she begged. "Don't think it!"

"I will!" he replied stubbornly. "I got to be said. We've evaded it long enough. If I fail to come back, you're ready to go on gamely. That will be your duty, just as it's mine to go out and die, if necessary, to get this bloody war ended."

She replied in a muffled voice from his arms. "Your part it easier than mine, George. I'd rather go and fight than wait here. I'd rather die in battle than be left without my very heart."

"I know," he said soothingly. "I know." To himself he was thinking: "War is hellish. Just three years ago we found each other. It was in the fall, like this. I loved the way she walked along picking up red leaves, sticking them in her hat, in her dress. I loved the way she closed her eyes when she kissed me. I still love these things in her. I'd like to go on loving them forever. Instead, I'm going off to a dirty war that somebody else started, and maybe have my guts torn out with a cold steel bayonet."

"George," Eleanor said, "you're shivering. Are you cold?"

"No," he replied. "You're imagining things. What I started out to say, dear, is this. If I shouldn't come back, you'll have Ruth to take care of."

A LOVELY LANE

Here is McClelland Barclay's canvas conception of beautiful Rosemary Lane, one of the famous Lane Sisters who are featured vocalists on the Wednesday's Metropolitan-Columbia Stoopnagle and Budd programmes over the Columbia network each Tuesday evening. The noted artist sketched Miss Lane during a recent rehearsal for the Waring broadcast.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE NEVER ELDER

DON'T USE BLEACHES TO KEEP BABY'S LIGHT HAIR LIGHT

It is hard for any parent to see her baby outgrow his infantile beauty—to see curly haired, pink cheeked, rosy-lipped develop into a scrawny girl with large front teeth and pimples!

But here is the mother of a very young baby who is meeting the very first change with reluctance. "I have a darling little girl fourteen months of age. She weighs twenty-four pounds, has twelve teeth and is thirty-five and one-half inches tall. She is so pretty now with her blonde curls, dark lashes and deep blue eyes. My problem is, whether there is any way to keep the baby's hair, blonde without injury to scalp or hair."

NO MORE OLIVE OIL

"I have been rubbing her scalp with olive oil, and though it is darkening her hair I don't think this is entirely responsible for it."

Age itself darkens all hair. But so is one method of hurrying the process—so it is said, though I can't prove it—I would hardly suggest that you continue it since you are intent on just the opposite result.

Lemon juice, used in the rinse water, is considered to be a hair-lightening method of keeping light tints in blonde hair. But other than this the only method of keeping hair light would be to use a bleach and to use any such artificial agent on a baby's hair would seem to me to be bad taste, if not harmful.

Most bleaching agents are considered to be drying to the hair—but I am not a "beautician" and so make no pretence of telling you what actual effect it would have. But it seems to me just good sense to keep a small child's hair clean, well cut and well brushed, attractive in itself, not because of its color. Our hair color usually blends with our skins and to my notion there are few ideal combinations as deep blue eyes, a fair skin and dark hair. You may have our leaflet, "Care of Children's Hair," for a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I should put some such programme of health care into effect and not follow such a will-o'-the-wisp as the effort to retain the color of a small baby's hair into the growing up period.

To-morrow: "Baby's Thumbucking May Be No Sign of Hunger."

ALTHOUSE TO SING WAGNER

Noted Metropolitan Opera Star Will Give Programme at Empire To-morrow

Following Paul Althouse's singing of the "Spring Song" from Wagner's "Die Walkure" in a concert of Wagner music under the baton of Toscanini, Olin Downes, noted critic of The New York Times, wrote: "It has been a considerable time in this city since Stenmund's music came with such warmth and glow of tone from a singer's throat, and was given such warm and impassioned delivery. Youth was in this song, as youth and the spring exulted in Wagner's music and Toscanini's orchestra." This beautiful Wagner aria is included in the programme to be given here by Paul Althouse to-morrow evening at the Empire Theatre. Other noteworthy numbers are two great Handel arias, "Total Eclipse" from "Samson" and the dramatic "Sound an Alarm" from "Judas Macabreus." The famous "O Paradiso" aria from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine" and three varied song groups are also included. Quirita Eybel will sing the beautiful aria, "L'est d'ou" from Massenet's "Samson et Dalila" and a group of songs including Daniel Wolf's exuberant "Total Eclipse" from "Judas Macabreus."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

CHESSE AIDS ECONOMY MEALS

By MARY E. DAKER

I don't know a single household including my own, where cheese is used as regularly as it should be in cooking.

When you are buying it for cooking you want a well-aged cheese. A great one is stringy and tough and refuses to blend with other ingredients.

American cheddar, known variously as York State, full cream, stone cheese, and plain mousetrap cheese was the first great success of the American cheese-maker and you can't beat it for cooking, though there is a new cheese made of whole milk that is creamier. Cheese has so little bulk and is such a concentrated food that the heaviest foods, fruits and vegetables, must be well represented in a menu featuring it.

It should not be added to an extremely hearty meal. Nutrition experts tell us that one pound of cheese is as "fairly good equivalent of five quarts of milk," or is milk in solid form. So to use more cheese is to use more milk with its two valuable minerals, calcium and phosphorus. Cheese is also high in protein and vitamin A.

Hominy and cheese timbales make excellent headlines for luncheon or supper with grilled fresh tomatoes or canned tomatoes done in saute.

CHESSE AND HOMINY TIMBALES

Two cups canned hominy, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, few grains pepper, 1 tablespoon minced sweet green pepper, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 cup scalded milk.

Drain hominy and combine with cheese and seasonings. Add eggs well beaten and mix thoroughly. Then add hot milk. Pour into buttered custard cups or timbales and set in a pan of hot water. Cover with buttered paper and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Unmold on a hot platter to serve.

Celery and cheese en casserole uses the coarse outer stalks of celery.

CELERY AND CHESSE EN CASSEROLE

One cup diced cheese, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon minced onion, 1 cup cooked macaroni, 2 cups diced celery, 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Mix salt, pepper and mustard and add to sauce. Bring to the boiling point and add cheese. Stir until melted. Parboil celery for ten minutes, drain and combine macaroni. Add onion and stir into sauce. Turn into a buttered casserole or baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Serve from baking dish.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast: Half of grapefruit, cereal, cream, walnuts, honey, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Stuffed baked squash, ice-cream rolls, apple sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner: Cheese and hominy timbales, grilled tomatoes, salad of Chinese cabbage in lime jelly, dog dish green peas, pie, milk, coffee.

Sir Edward German's beautiful opera "Merrie England" has been chosen as the next production of the Intermediate and Junior Operatic Society, which was organized in 1933 by Mrs. W. B. McKicking, president of the Burydies Art Club.

The producers, Mr. Percy McKieburgh, Mrs. McKicking and Mr. Edgar Holloway, musical director, chose "Merrie England" as a worthy successor to the former delightful productions, and rehearsals are now under way.

All young people from the ages of fifteen to twenty-five, with either soprano, contralto, tenor, baritone or bass voices, are cordially invited to join as there are several leading roles to be filled. FIRST PICTORIAL DISPATCH BY H. V. DREES, THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES-NEA STAFF CAMERAMAN

NEW, EXCLUSIVE PHOTOS FROM ETHIOPIA

An Ogaen native is shown practicing rifle fire in the thorny, difficult-to-traverse scrub lands—one of Ethiopia's natural defences against invasion.

Barefooted and without any apparent equipment, Ethiopian warriors congregate in the doorway of a troop car en route to the front. The man at left hides as it is against his religion to be photographed.

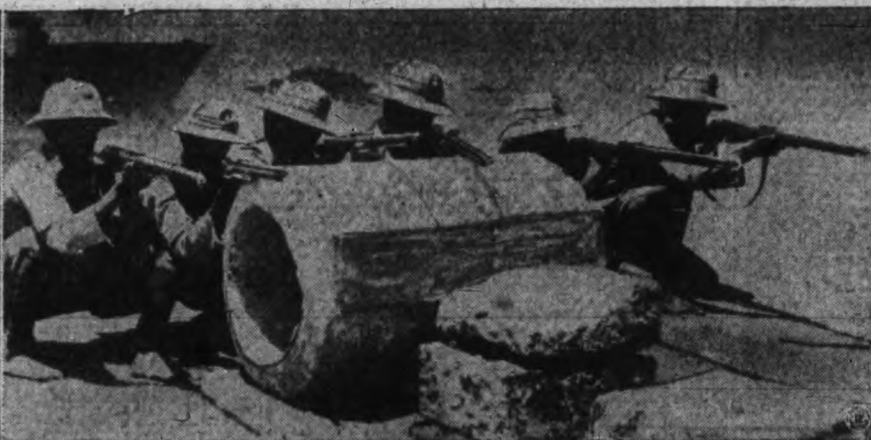

Left: Emperor Haile Selassie has employed European and United States advisers, who include General Eric Virgin (left) of Sweden, chief military adviser, and Everett A. Coulson, American economic expert, pictured as they set out to inspect the Ogaen front, which may bear the brunt of fighting.

In these first pictures, rushed to Canada following his arrival in Ethiopia, H. V. Drees, The Times and NEA Service staff photographer, portrays the desperate military preparations made by the little African kingdom to defend itself from attack by Italy. Not only is the full manpower of the country being rushed to the front lines, but the very boys are being accepted for military service. Dwarfed by the grown men beside him, you see (above) a twelve-year-old recruit marching toward a concentration camp carrying a rifle that seems almost as big as he is.

Right: Crowding every available inch of space, and overflowing into the train platforms, there is less of the gala than the grim in the demeanor of these Ethiopian soldiers entrained at Diradawa for a quick trip to the Ogaen front. Note the amazing variety of uniforms worn by the troops.

No room for them on the crowded troop trains, these soldiers set out on foot to reach the Ogaen front, where Italy's first attack is expected in the event of war.

Soldiers and relatives are pictured at the railroad station in Addis Ababa, speeding their families out of the capital, which lies in peril of attack from the air.

The desolation created by tropic rains is shown in this view of the native village of Marta in Harar province, its little straw huts looking forlorn among the puddles. The rainy season has compelled Italy to delay its proposed attack.

A trainload of Ethiopian troops and supplies is shown going down the line between Duazale and Diradawa to repair damage done by heavy rains to the all-important railroad from Addis Ababa to the shore.

Is Your Life SUPER-SELECT?

WHAT do we mean by "Super-Select"? A $10,000 Super-Select Policy pays to your beneficiary $10,000 at death, or, if the beneficiary prefers it, $57.50 a month for 240 months.

If you die by accident before you reach age 60, we will pay $20,000 to your beneficiary in cash, or $10,000 in cash and $57.50 a month for 240 months.

If you become totally disabled before you reach age 55 (after six months of total disability) the Confederation Life will pay you $100 a month for 50 months and then $50 a month for 100 months. Then, if you are still totally disabled at the end of the 150 months, the Association will pay you a further $10,000 in cash. MORE LIGHT AT LADYSMITH

All-night Street Lighting Plan to Go Into Effect October 1

Ladysmith, Sept. 30.—An all-night street lighting system will go into effect in Ladysmith on October 1. This decision was reached after consideration of the cost by the council Wednesday night.

Since the system of purchasing power in bulk for redistribution from the Nanaimo Utilities was started, street lighting had been considerably curtailed. Meanwhile, in the interests of greater efficiency in street lighting, the city electrician will adjust parts of the circuit and rearrange some lamps to illuminate dark corners.

The subject of local hydro-electric development was brought up. Alderman Steele asked if there was any intention of developing the resources of Holland Creek, after the trouble the city had gone to in procuring water rights there.

Alderman Joyce said he had made a study of the creek and was satisfied that something could be done. The agreement with the Nanaimo Utilities was well into the second year of the three, he said, and the city should get busy on the matter of determining in an authoritative way, just how far the power of the creek could serve the economic needs of the community.

The city had the generating equipment, plenty of relief labor, and the material required consisted mainly of piping, to lead the water from the top of the waterfall to shore level. Possibly government assistance could be sought in this connection.

In the discussion on the matter, the council was unanimous that the possibilities of the creek should be investigated. Arrangements will be made to have an engineer survey the project. Some members of the council claimed that between 200 and 250 horsepower could be developed from the creek waters for nine months of the year, and with better storage and diversion facilities, the head of water could be maintained to supply current during the dry months of the year, when demand fell to a minimum.

Mayor Walkem commented that apart from the power possibilities, development of the creek resources could assure the city of an adequate supply of water for industrial purposes.

Stories in STAMPS
By I. S. Klein

THE MOTHER

THE ITALIAN island of Sardinia has been brought into the realm of literature by the writings of one of its natives, Grazia Deledda. So forcefully and vividly has Madame Deledda painted the life of this little country that she won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1926.

"The Mother" is her most familiar and greatest novel. She has written some fifty books since 1881, and among them are many that are considered as great works of art as "The Mother." Herself a mother of two children, she was able to put her personal feelings and ambitions into this tale.

Madame Deledda wrote since she was twelve—short stories, poems, romances, novels. She also is a member of the Italian Academy of Immortals.

But, in stamps, she is remembered by Turkey in its recent issue produced in connection with the International Suffrage Congress at Istanbul.

A. and N. Veterans Hold Golf Tourney

Members of the Army and Navy Veterans gathered at the Macaulay Point Golf Club yesterday for an enjoyable tournament. The tournament was in charge of Admiral Jack and all competitors voted it an outstanding success.

After playing three extra holes Jimmy Bennett captured the honors from A. H. Hooper.

Harry Cooley won the tombstone prize with a score of 123 with Harry Winter and G. H. Mason also taking awards. The prizes were presented by President J. Scarfe. Great credit is due to Harry Roehon, chairman of the sports committee, for the success of the tournament and the manner in which the two casualty clearing stations and supply ships were handled.

At the time of her death, Queen Elizabeth had 8,000 dresses in her wardrobe.

Automobile Club Publishes Guide

A new booklet, containing a summary of laws, by-laws and regulations, affecting the conduct of motor cars on the highways of the province, Victoria and Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich municipalities has just been published by the Victoria Automobile Club, entitled "The Highway Code," as an aid to its members.

The following is written in the preface:

"For the motorist driving in and around Victoria, who is anxious not to incur a fine for traffic offence, it is not easy to know the laws, by-laws and regulations which govern his movements. In the course of a short drive he may, in addition to the provincial regulations, become subject successively to the traffic by-laws of four different municipalities, which vary in several important points."

The local club has undertaken the publishing of this booklet as a guide to its members and in the hope that it may help them set an example of carefulness when behind the steering wheel of their autos.

New York, Sept. 30 (Associated Press).—Rubber futures advanced 64 to 86 points on the commodity exchange to-day following a five-point reduction in the export quota by the international committee in London.

The crude rubber export quota for the last quarter, originally set by the committee at 65 per cent of the basic minimum figure, was lowered to 60 per cent for October, November and December under to-day's decree.

JUSTICE

BENNETT

The Brave Leader Who Brought a Brave People Through The World Economic Storm.

Canada has just come through the three greatest financial crises in world history, all breaking upon her from outside. TODAY, CANADA'S HEAD IS "BLOODY, BUT UNBOWED". SHE IS STILL THE MASTER OF HER FATE, THE CAPTAIN OF HER SOUL.

Do you suppose that a Government of mere parliamentarians or catchpenny politicians could have brought us through the past five years? This was no time for petty politics and partisan advantage. It called for strong statesmanship and iron courage in the Government. And, at the helm, it demanded A MAN.

The world will not soon forget the great American stock and commodity crash in the fall of 1929, when billions were wiped out and white panic stalked the earth. A Liberal Government was in power in Canada, with a genial, laissez-faire "wait-and-see" policy of inaction, and a leader who assured the Canadian people that "economic conditions in Canada were never more sound." They did not create the world crisis but they did nothing to meet it. And when they reaped the whirlwind and were tossed out of office in 1930, they left the wreckage piled up at Mr. Bennett's door—left Canada exposed in the midst of the great financial storm with ruin staring her in the face, and left the incoming Conservative Government to keep the country solvent with the shackles of an inherited unfavorable trade balance amounting to $103,000,000.

Mr. Bennett had been in office only a year when the second great crash occurred abroad. Great Britain was forced off gold in the great sterling crisis of the autumn of 1931, and half the world's currencies tottered with the British pound. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, then British Prime Minister, has described the agonies of that week-end of September 20, 1931. It had the most immediate reaction upon Canada, and sent our dollar diving towards destruction. IF IT REQUIRED RESOLUTE HANDLING TO TAKE OVER IN 1930, IN THE MIDST OF THE STORM, IT NEEDED IRON STATESMANSHIP TO BRING US THROUGH THE STERLING CRISIS WHICH FOR THE TIME BEING LAID EVEN PROUD BRITAIN LOW.

In time, the world panic spread to this continent again. In March, 1933, after bank failure upon bank failure, with State after State declaring moratoria, the United States was forced to admit a national panic and to close every bank in the Union. With our great, rich neighbour prostrate in the grip of a mighty panic—right next door—how did Canada fare? Not a bank closed its doors in Canada, not an insurance company failed, not a Canadian lost his savings. Sound banking, and above all a sound people with sound institutions brought us through. BUT IT MEANT SOUND GOVERNMENT, IN THE FACE OF IMMEDIATE NATIONAL PERIL. AND THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT STOOD THIS TEST WHILE GOVERNMENTS ELSEWHERE, LIKE THEIR INSTITUTIONS, WERE TOTTERING.

Today we have come through these crises, though we are still far from the Promised Land. We are on the up-grade, we are doing better and better, though we cannot dream of resting yet.

DURING THE PAST FOUR YEARS CANADA'S EXPORT TRADE HAS HELD UP BETTER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER GREAT TRADING NATION, EXCEPT JAPAN.

Our industrial pick-up from the depression lows has been equally remarkable but we single out export trade since the life of the country depends upon it, in the broadest way, and particularly that of the farmer, the miner, the lumberman, and the primary producer generally. THAT IS A PROUD RECORD, ACHIEVED NOT BY PLAYING POLITICS BUT BY THE PEOPLE'S COURAGE AND THE GOVERNMENT'S LEADERSHIP.

The Canadian people have suffered bravely throughout the world storm, and they are making a heroic come-back today. Their heroism called for heroic leadership—matching the man and the hour. R. B. BENNETT NEVER QUAILED, NEVER FAILED YOU IN THE CRISES. HE BROUGHT CANADA THROUGH. LEADING A HEROIC PEOPLE WAS A GREAT MAN, A GREAT STATESMAN, AND—ABOVE ALL—A GREAT CANADIAN.

FREDDY WOOD GOLF CHAMP

Lifts B.C. Open Championship With Seventy-two-hole Score of 285

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Blond-haired Freddy Wood, young professional from the Fraser Golf Club, blazed his spectacular way around the tricky Quilchena course in a par-amazing performance Saturday to lead home two score of British Columbia's crack shot-makers and capture the British Columbia open golf title.

The slender Wood, who took to the monkey putts three years ago after making a name for himself in the amateur world as British Columbia champion and a member of British Columbia's Willingdon Cup team, turned in two sub-par rounds Saturday for a seventy-two-hole total of 285, twelve strokes better than a pair of Vancouver shot-makers in second place.

Leading the field as a result of the opening round, Wood breezed over the morning eighteen Saturday in 60, two under perfect figures, then wound up his tour of the rolling greens with a smart 70 in the afternoon round. All told he collected eight birdies Saturday, four on each round.

Stan Leonard, another provincial amateur champion and one of the Coast's leading simon-pureers, put together rounds of 78-71-73, for a total of 322, to tie with Dunc Sutcliffe, Point Grey pro, for second place.

Harry Winder of the West Point Grey Club occupied fourth place, another three strokes back.

Dave Black, veteran pro from the Shaughnessy Golf Club, Vancouver, was fifth with 301, and Don Sutherland, Burquitlam, defending champion, sixth with 302.

Jimmy Todd, young southpaw from the Victoria Golf Club, eased into sixth place in the final standings with rounds of 78-73-77-78 for 307.

FRYKE ELEVENTH

Joe Fryke, Colwood, pro, tied for eleventh place with Ben Cole, Hastings Park Club, Vancouver, with 310. Fryke had cards of 82-75-79-77.

The third Victoria entry in the tournament, Freddy Wood, was further down the list with 81-75-84-74 for 314.

Jimmy McLaren, former world welterweight boxing champion, finished the seventy-two holes after taking 334 strokes. He carded a 79 on the last eighteen Saturday, best score of his round.

fray; not blasting one's way to trade; not shaking big clenched fists in the face of opponents; no filling the country with spying, secret-service men, is going to help us in the terrible impasse that we find ourselves, but sweet reasonableness and a better all-round understanding. "I won't hear you if you come," declared Mr. Bennett to the strikers. "Come and let us reason together," says the Lord God Almighty. "You ought to be in good," exerts the Premier to his interrupters. "Let's sit down and talk this situation over and see if we can't arrive at a solution," says Mackenzie King. EDUCATION

To the Editor:—One is supposed to believe that we are living in an age of progress. We see an arrogant rejection of what is old, and a nervous eagerness to grasp what is new. With these thoughts we may wonder what has happened to education. Education to-day is concerned with methods of acquisition, measurement and distribution of time into credit periods. There is minute classification, all the way from the superficial-lectural group that is specially fostered, to those of mental piangage that achieve problems of addition by the use of blocks. Criticism falls not on these efforts to measure mind, but what of the beauty of learning; something we do not often hear of now. One goes to college, attends so many hours of this or that subject, to secure so many credits in order to get a degree, without which we are told positions are unobtainable. All this may be necessary, but is it not possible

DEATH CAR BEING HAULED OUT

The sedan driven by Ernest W. Bird, in which Mr. and Mrs. William Y. McCarter met death and five other persons were injured, at the corner of Hillside Avenue and Blackwood Street yesterday, is shown above as it lay crumpled up after being smashed over a four-foot embankment. With the rear left door torn off, the car was hauled out by a crane and is being taken to a garage for a total loss.

to make learning a thing of wealth and beauty, giving light to appraise, criticize and approve? Should not an educated man mean more than a "college" man, degreed from the circumstance that so many hours study are credited in the books?

If we recapture the realization that education is something higher, deeper, vaster than merely a technique of speech; a coining of words to express old realities of thought and feeling in a new language, we shall have made a good start to rediscover culture, to progress in education.

"APT-WORDS LTD." OR UNLIMITED?

To the Editor:—The Apt-Words Ltd. weekly competitions are conducted with scrupulous integrity, and its staff are businesslike and friendly.

But this delightful recreation is losing its intriguing element of a "gambler's chance" to win back, through sheer intelligence, the spread of words, because its field now covers all Canada and much of the States, the result being that hundreds of winners have to share prizes.

I suggest, therefore, that Islanders, or possibly British Columbians, would secure the same fun with better chances of gaining a prize—nominally smaller, but actually greater—if we conducted a similar competition, on an equitable basis, for ourselves, on a co-operative basis, and if anyone cares to get in touch with me, we could start at once.

This would not preclude competitors from continuing their allegiance as Apt-Words fans, but would permit more permutations.

Either original puzzles might be made, or the weekly Apt-Words, ones used as they appear, a private solution (which might or might not concur with that selected and lodged in Vancouver) being selected here and lodged with an equally reputable Islander for a suitable fee.

I understand (though I may be misinformed) that the idea and original samples were adapted from an English paper, but anyhow, our adoption of a distinctive title, whatever puzzles we chose to use, would be essential, and there could be no moral or legal objection to a smaller circle making its own arrangements. "Little fleas have lesser fleas," and some might copy.

Our island competition might be called "Fit-Pats," and the prizes be determined on a percentage basis. Suppose only even 100 competitors entered, with two double-entries each (four blanks filled for 50c), this would provide $50 for prizes and expenses, e.g., 1, $15; 2, $10; advertising, stationery, postage, etc., $7; fee to solution-guard, $5, and compiler and clerk, $15. A month's trial would probably provide more.

I am not a disgruntled Apt-Wordian, being a first and second prize sharer, and should continue the sport there while acting either as compiler-clerk or as competitor in Fit-Pats.

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Sept. 28.—Condition of Nels Crutchfield, centre and defence player of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, who suffered a fractured skull in an automobile collision Saturday night, was reported to-day as satisfactory.

He was rushed to hospital following collision of Lionel Swift's roadster with a sedan driven by Ernest Trahan, Montreal. Crutchfield and Miss Brigitte Bourassa were passengers in Swift's roadster.

PROHIBITION

To the Editor:—Clergymen have, through the ages, occupied a unique place. They have stood, and would stand, to-day, in a higher place than ordinary sinful mortals. But they choose to step down from their pedestal and busy themselves in politics, become mercenary and tend toward the sensational in their sermons and activities. I speak now of the "dissonance." The established church and its clergy are too broad-minded and liberal to fall into the snare.

I have in mind the question of prohibition particularly, for it is being raised from the dead. Surely the terrible lesson we learned from the Eighteenth Amendment in the U.S.A. cannot so soon be forgotten. We were assured that with prohibition the hell would be empty, sexual irregularities almost all and our world purified and exalted to new spiritual heights. What happened? A new type of criminal, more ruthless, more deadly than any the world had known hitherto developed and flourished. The U.S.A. was put to tremendous and useless expense in its endeavor to enforce a ridiculous law. Respectable, God-fearing people were outspoken in condemning the curtailment of their personal liberties and to-day—reading the papers I am given to understand that a certain ordained minister criticized Mr. Beatty for his support of the suggested sale of beer and light wine, and inferred that the said Mr. Beatty thought only of C.P.R. profits. It would be singular if Mr. Beatty did not, but will the ingenious minister be able to explain his stand to thinking people, not as glibly as his flock? He says that Mr. Beatty gets a large amount of money from the C.P.R.—Let us say his living. Where does the minister get his stipend? It is just as much to his advantage to condemn the sale of beer and light wine in our province as it is to Mr. Beatty's to uphold it.

Let us vote upon the question by actual suit outnumber the morose. There are, in this chaotic age, a large number of persons, who while believing in God and living exemplary lives, can discriminate between Hebrew mythology and truth.

And supposing they do take the Bible literally, where in it can they find support for prohibition? Certainly not in the New Testament.

In closing, I should like to point out that if the ministers of dissenting churches were successful, each in his "small corner," the need for prohibition would not arise—the majority of persons would be entirely temperate—and majority rules. May I appeal to those "teachers," these men who have influence and power to return to their rightful places. The world is troubled and we poor mortals are harassed and suffering. Is not the role of comforter more worthwhile than any other? The clergy have this role and should keep it. Let them walk aloof—we are all of us, the worst of us, idealists at heart and the need of comfort is universal.

To whom shall we look, if not to ordained ministers of the Gospel for the necessary support and advice. We, being imperfect, like to feel that there are mortals frail and faithful like ourselves who have somehow achieved closer communion with the Creator. There is no greater glory than to be able to give necessary spiritual aid—no harder task—no higher reward. Therefore, I beseech the clergy generally and separately to think well before they doff the halo and adopt the political derby.

G. R. HERBERT.
Margold, P.O. B.C.

What additional power do the delegates at Geneva require that they have not got already? What difference would any amount of acrobatic miles long, of signatures make? To add water to a cup, full to the brim, is useless and wasteful. To use Bible language: "They have Moses and the prophets; if they hear not these, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead!"

Therefore, no amount of additional signatures, no efforts of the best intentioned diplomats, no appeal by any of the organized churches' dignitaries will give stability to a structure built upon the sands of man's disregard of God; a structure which has been refused by its builders, the only sure and solid rock foundation which is Christ, the Prince of Peace!

Esquimalt soccer eleven opened its 1936-37 campaign with a victory over the Wests in the second match. Shooting on both sides was erratic, with many scoring chances being missed. The first half saw the Dockers hold a decided edge during which they managed to twice beat Tommy Restell, Wests' netminder. The Wests scored their only tally in the second half.

Major Ball Teams Close Season; Crown Batting Champions

Majority Clubs Show Profit For Year's Campaign

Two New Attendance Marks Set; Gehrig and Suhr Make Endurance Marks

Ruth's Passing Season Feature

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

The last out of the 1935 major league baseball season has been marked up and the year's "box score" indicates a successful season in one way or another for most of the big-league clubs.

The Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers still have to decide the year's ultimate supremacy in the world series, beginning Wednesday at Detroit, but so far as the long grind in their respective leagues went they've shown themselves to be "tops."

Notable improvement among the low-ranking teams was shown by the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati Reds, both cellar dwellers last year, who finished fifth and sixth, respectively, in 1935. Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and Washington also moved up a bit, while Rogers Hornsby's St. Louis Browns, seemingly a certain last-place club at start, finished seventh.

From the financial viewpoint the game seemed on the upgrade, except where teams were too far out of the race to draw. The Tigers, Boston Red Sox, Reds, Cubs and both New York clubs drew big crowds at various times and a couple of new attendance marks were set.

The "strike-out" against Babe Ruth was a big mark in the scorebook when the Babe, after a futile effort to pull the Boston Braves out of the race, finally quarreled with owner Emil Fuchs and retired from the game. The Braves, going from bad to worse,

Warneke Will Pitch Opener

Chicago, Sept. 30.—L. A. Warneke, pride of the Ozarks, will oppose the Tigers in the first game of the world baseball series, opening in Detroit Wednesday.

This was the decision to-day of Charley John Grimm, manager of the Cubs.

"And if you want to know some more," Grimm said, "Ruth will go after these fellows on Thursday. And if either gets in trouble, Larry Brown will be his relief."

set a new modern National League mark of 115 defeats in one season and never escaped from their financial difficulties.

TWO MORE RECORDS

Two more notable records on the year's book were the endurance marks of Lou Gehrig of the Yankees and Gus Suhr of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Gehrig, continuing the greatest "iron man" feat in big league history, played in 149 games to stretch his string to 1,553 consecutive contests.

Suhr established a new National League mark of 628 straight by getting into all of Pittsburgh's 143 games. The big event of the year, however, was Chicago's brilliant race to the National League championship. The Cubs, fourth July 4, suddenly came to life soon after that and won twenty-four out of twenty-seven games to hop into the midst of the pennant fight. When the Cardinals and Giants apparently had staved off that challenge, they started another string, running twenty-one straight and finally winning the flag by beating first the Giants and then the Cards.

The Tigers, defending their 1934 American League title in fine style, won with comparative ease despite a weak start and a poor finish. Taking the lead from the Yankees July 26, they built up a lead as big as ten games and coasted through to clinch the flag.

The "tip-off" on the general success of the whole season, however, seems to be that every manager but Walter Johnson held his job clear through the season. The "big train" couldn't fulfill Cleveland's pennant hopes and finally was ousted in favor of Steve O'Neill.

CHAMPIONS BEATEN

The close of the regular campaign yesterday followed the usual form in that both champions were beaten. The Cubs, whose winning streak was halted by St. Louis Saturday, took a final 2 to 1 defeat from the Cards when rookie Bill McGehee held them to three hits. The Tigers took it on the chin twice from the White Sox, sensations of the early part of the season. A ninth-inning run gave Chicago the opener, 3 to 2, and the Sox pounded Menden Auer for a 14 to 2 decision in the six-inning afterpiece.

Brooklyn clinched fifth place in the National League—the only position not settled before the final day—by taking the first game of the Phillies 2 to 0 on Van Mungo's twelfth, fifteen-strike-out flinging. The second ended in a 4 to 1 eight-inning tie.

TABLE TENNIS LEAGUE OPENS

First Games To-morrow in Two Divisions of Local Loop

Celluloid warfare will open to-morrow evening when sixteen teams in the two divisions of the Victoria Table Tennis League step up to the green tables for the first battle of the six months' season.

Glenahiel Hotel, victor in last year's league clashes, is in the running again for the honors, and many of the old teams are back, though some of the squads, notably the Aces who were supreme in the city's ping-pong firmament two years ago, have dropped out. Vic Tulley who helped the Glenahiel cop the silverware in piloting his own team, while Hy Lowe who was with the Beach Hotel is now captaining a team of Chinese students.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines which ran two teams last year are throwing all their resources into one bid for first division honors, while the Royal Arcanum under Doug Park have entered a second team.

FREAK SERVICES OUT

Due to the fact that the Victoria League has affiliated with the Vancouver Table Tennis Association, knuckle serves, spin serves, and other goosy serves have been barred from all league games. The ball must be in the air before it strikes the bat, the rule for servers applies, and referees have been instructed to watch this point carefully.

A neutral referee will umpire all games this year. It is understood that barracking even of a friendly nature will not be allowed.

white squad also garnered a marker in that period.

Esquimalt opened the scoring about twenty minutes after the start of the match. Dick Miller, Dockers' centre forward, booted the ball past goalie Restell, during a scramble in front of the goalmouth.

Keeping up the pressure, Esquimalt came right back two minutes later to score again when Bill McLean, left half, took scotchy Stewart's rebound from the bar and smashed the leather into the corner of the net.

For the rest of the half the Wests were on the offensive and fought hard to score, but could not force their way through the stiff defence put up by their opponents.

WESTS SCORE

Five minutes after the sound of the whistle for the resumption of play the Wests garnered their only tally, to make the score stand 2 to 1. Following up McKay's attempt, which goalie Hood fumbled, Jimmy Dunlop kicked the ball out of the netminder's hands into the net.

Play swung in either direction with both squads displaying poor shooting until the closing seconds of the match when Miller again scored. He rushed through the Wests' defence and kicked a sizzler into the net from close in. T. Robb refereed.

The teams follow: Esquimalt—A. Hood, Joe Watt, A. March, D. Day, McCannell, Edwards, McAllister, "Scotty" Stewart, Dick Miller, Holttum and J. Wenzelick. Subs: John Watt, W. McLean and J. McKay.

SEALS LIFT COAST TITLE

Defeat Los Angeles 6 to 3 and 8 to 3 to Capture Baseball Crown

Los Angeles, Sept. 30.—For the first time in more than two years the Coast League Baseball pennant was not flying from the mast at Wrigley Field to-day.

San Francisco's Seals hauled it down yesterday when they battered five Los Angeles hurlers for twenty-two hits in a doubleheader that ended the 1935 play-off series, four games to two. Ten thousand persons saw the invaders walk off with the first game 6 to 3 and then come back to win the flag with an 8 to 3 triumph.

It was a four-run assault in the sixth after Los Angeles had tied the score in the seventh inning that gave San Francisco the first game. A five-run barrage in the fourth sealed the second contest away.

Roy Jolner, a former Angel southpaw, held his teammates of yesterday at bay in the second contest which the Seals gunners clinched in a large fourth inning.

NO INNING

Joe Becker started off the parade with a double to deep centre. Jolner was safe on a fielder's choice and Art Garibaldi ushered Lou Garland off the mound with a single to right that scored Becker.

Powers loaded the bases with an infield hit and Marty made Glenn Gahler, Garland's successor, feel at home by cleaning the footpaths with a homer into the centre field bleachers.

Jolner held the Angels to one hit until the seventh. Marvin Gudat doubled to open the inning and Jim Olesby clouted a homer over the right field screen. Again in the ninth Gudat hit the ball out of the park, but the bases were empty and all further efforts to prolong the series went to naught.

Short scores:

First: R. H. E.
San Francisco 6 10 0
Los Angeles 3 8 2

Batteries: Ballou and Woodall; Meala, Campbell and Steiner.

Second: R. H. E.
San Francisco 8 12 1
Los Angeles 3 6 0

Batteries: Jolner and Becker; Garland, Gahler, Burton and Steiner.

Former Lifts National League Title With Fine Average of .385; Myer Rattles Out Four Hits on Final Day to Nose Out Joe Vosmik For American Crown With Mark of .350

New York, Sept. 30.—While Floyd (Ark) Vaughan, Pittsburgh Pirates, was assured of the batting championship held last year by his team-mate, Paul Waner, a stirring race for the American League title wound up yesterday with the issue still in doubt.

Buddy Myer, Washington veteran, was the challenger, having come up in his final game against the Philadelphia Athletics and according to unofficial records nosed out Joe Vosmik, Cleveland, for the title. The four-point gain of the final day gave Myer a mark of .350, while Vosmik, hitting only once in four attempts, dropped a point to .349.

A complete re-check of the official records will be needed before it is decided, some time next winter, whether these marks will stand.

Vaughan wound up with an unofficial .385 mark and a margin of thirty-two points over his nearest rival, Joe Medwick, St. Louis.

DAMAGES OF $1,000 SOUGHT

Douglas Farquhar Johnston, who has a country place near Cowichan Station, was called to the witness stand to-day before Judge Lammiman to give evidence in his claim for damages against the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd.

Mr. Johnston testified that while he was traveling as a passenger on an up-island bus, a seat was projected from an interior baggage rack by the swaying of the bus on the island highway curves, near Goldstream. This seat, weighing some three pounds, he said, struck him on the left shoulder with such force that it caused him great pain and expense for medical treatment. He asked the court to award him $750 general damages and $250 special damages.

Dr. Thomas McPherson testified about handling Mr. Johnston as a patient and finding that he had developed a distinct "click" in his shoulder.

Fred B. Holtum also testified. Roy Manner, counsel for the Coach Lines, referred to the evidence of Dr. Moore to the effect that he had found no "click" in Mr. Johnston's shoulder.

Dr. McPherson, replying to this, said it was probably impossible for Dr. Moore to have heard the "click" at the time because of the swelling.

In the courtroom there has been set up the interior of one side of a motor bus with the double seats, the baggage rack and the roof above.

W. H. Haldane is counsel for Mr. Johnston.

YM.C.A. BUYS GLINZ LAKE

Boys' Work Committee Announces Anonymous Donor Has Provided Money

Glinz Lake, which is situated in the Sooke Hills, about half a mile past the seventeenth Mile House, has been purchased by the Y.M.C.A. It will be used as a permanent site for the Y.M.C.A. boys' camp.

Announcement of the purchase was made at the annual gathering of leaders of the Y.M.C.A. held yesterday afternoon at the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jameson on the Sooke River.

For some time a committee of the association, under W. T. Straith, chairman of the boys' work department at the "Y," has been trying to secure a permanent site for the camp. Eight years ago the boys camped at Beaver Lake, but when this section was opened up a site on Sooke Harbor was taken. Recently summer places have been built near this site and the Y.M.C.A. was anxious to secure a place more isolated.

Many sites were inspected but the Glinz Lake property, of 340 acres, was the only one that met the requirements.

Three months ago the Glinz Lake property, of 340 acres, was inspected and as the committee felt the price asked could be met an option until September 15 was taken and the camp was held there in July.

When the committee failed to secure the money by September 15 an extension of the option to October 1 was obtained. After a great deal of work, Mr. Straith finally interested a man, who for the present, wishes to remain anonymous, in the project. He is making a donation of $2,000 which will meet the purchase price.

Mr. Straith is the Y.M.C.A. boys' work department of the "Y," his hobby. He is retired and has been sold on the splendid work which the boys' department of the "Y" is doing.

The boys' work committee will formulate plans for a permanent camp. Buildings will be erected before next summer.

Glinz Lake is about two miles in from the Sooke Highway. The road is not very good, but certain improvements will be made to it. It is not proposed to make the camp too accessible.

WOLF CUB PACKS PROVE TRAINING

James Island Pack Wins Aggregate at Annual Rally at Heywood Avenue

The excellent training of Victoria district cub packs was demonstrated Saturday afternoon at the annual Wolf Cub rally held at the Heywood Avenue football ground, and attended by packs from several points on the lower island.

Ten competitions for trophies were included in the programme. The most successful was the pack of the M. T. Ravenshill Silver, with a score of fourteen points. The presentation was made by Major Wise.

Sidney and First Cathedral tied for second place in the aggregate with twelve points, and St. Mary's South came next with eight. Others competing were the Third Victoria, St. Barnabas, St. Mary's Third, St. Paul's, Cadboro Bay and St. Luke's packs.

The most spectacular feature of the afternoon's competitions was the jungle dance for the J. T. Slater Trophy, won by the Langford pack with a score of ninety-one points out of a possible 100. James Island and Sidney also competed.

H. T. Ravenshill, who judged the dance and made the presentation, highly commended the quality of the performances put on by all three packs.

Road Cost Basis May Be Changed

Cost of maintenance of several roads in the province now classified as primary or secondary highways on which the provincial government pays a share, would be put fully on municipalities under plans contemplated by Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works.

Mr. MacPherson said that in some areas the province is paying a share on roads that duplicate service already provided by arterials fully maintained by the government. As far as possible he will endeavor to eliminate these duplications by reclassifying the roads in question.

LABOR SURVEY UNDERTAKEN

Province Starts To-morrow on Classification of Relief Rolls

British Columbia will start to-morrow to classify all of its unemployed on the basis of their training and ability to work.

In relief offices all over the province, persons applying for assistance will be requested to fill out questionnaires giving information as to their previous working experience, their physical condition and other details.

From this knowledge the provincial government hopes to learn just how a public works programme can be best drawn up to provide the maximum benefit.

It will show, first, which trades are most largely represented in the ranks of the unemployed, where the greatest incidence of unemployment falls and, most important, what proportion of those drawing relief are able to do full-time work.

Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, indicated to-day that when the relief rolls have been canvassed in this fashion, a similar attempt will be made to classify those people who, while not actually drawing relief, have not steady employment and are having difficulty in obtaining it.

Another relief matter receiving the minister's concern is the surprising increase in the total relief roll shown in August by comparison with last year. The increase was practically all in municipal cases and the minister indicated the entire situation would be subject to close scrutiny.

"Y" Committees In Conference

Dr. E. M. Best, Y.M.C.A. National Secretary, Speaks at Sooke Meeting

Directors and committee members of the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon forgot city life for a while, ate apples right off the trees, threw stones at logs, sipped copiously and, incidentally, got a lot of work done.

The scene was the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jameson at Sooke and the occasion the annual committee conference of the "Y" which was held last year in the same setting but under very different weather conditions.

Dr. E. M. Best, general secretary of the national council of the Y.M.C.A. in Canada, was the guest of the directors at the meeting, and gave an address.

Although the duplication of activities caused a certain amount of embarrassment to the Y.M.C.A., said Dr. Best, the association could be proud of the fact that churches, clubs and many social organizations were adopting the "Y" programme almost to the letter.

Dr. Best referred to the plan for supervised recreation, and the unemployed being undertaken by the provincial government. The question as to whether or not the government proposes to throw this scheme open to everyone in the province will be taken up with the members of the government.

Reports of the various committees were heard during the afternoon, and all had a note of optimism in them for the coming year.

J. O. Cameron, treasurer, reporting on the association's finances, referred to the considerable improvement noted last year, and expressed the hope that for the coming season a similar advance would be seen.

Tribute to the work of Archie McKinnon was paid by Ernest Harrison. In presenting his report of the physical committee, the physical department, he said, was looking forward to a splendid fall and winter season in the gymnasium.

The success of the booth arranged by the "Y" at the Willows farm was referred to by E. G. Rowbottom, who submitted the membership committee's report. Mr. Rowbottom also outlined the committee's plans for the organization of the annual membership campaign, to be held October 15 to 22.

Vivian Shoemaker, reporting for the boys' work committee, announced the purchase of the camp site at Glinz Lake. The announcement was received with considerable applause by the meeting.

The boys' department had set as its objective a membership of 500, Mr. Shoemaker announced.

H. B. Witter, president of the Y.M.C.A. board of directors, presided at the conference.

The "Y" board of directors, offered the cordial thanks of the board to Mr. and Mrs. Jameson for their wonderful hospitality during the course of the afternoon and evening.

Will Investigate Arc Light Static

Means of nullifying the noise made in radio receiving sets by the city's arc lights will be investigated by members of the Victoria Short Wave Club, it was decided at a meeting at the home of E. A. Cross, 2036 Newton Street, on Saturday evening.

Possibilities of holding a convention of members of the Amateur Radio League of the Pacific Northwest in Victoria next year were discussed.

Visitors at the meeting were J. McCullister and the operator of short-wave station VESPT.

Remand Is Given On Manslaughter Case

Francis Findlay appeared in the City Police Court this afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, before Magistrate George Jay on a charge of "unlawfully killing and slaying Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. McCarter."

Magistrate Jay remanded the case until to-morrow morning to get information on the condition of the witnesses who will be called.

H. A. Beckwith appeared for the accused and asked for bail but Magistrate Jay said he would withhold his decision until to-morrow.

Mr. Findlay appeared in court neatly attired but appeared weary and tired.

DAUGHTER OF PIONEER DIES

Miss Sarah Finlayson Passes; Born Here in 1858, Daughter of H. B. Factor

A life which spanned seventy-five years in Victoria came to a close yesterday evening with the death of Miss Sarah Finlayson, native daughter and member of a well-known pioneer family, at her home, 1009 Terrace Avenue.

Born in Victoria in 1858, Miss Finlayson was a daughter of the late Hon. Roderick and Mrs. Finlayson, her father being a Hudson's Bay Company pioneer and one of the earliest mayors of Victoria.

Mr. Finlayson, who was born in Ross-shire, Scotland, in 1815, came to Canada in 1839, when he joined the Hudson's Bay Company. In 1843 he was transferred to Fort Victoria as second-in-command. He remained in charge of this fort until the arrival in 1848 of Sir James Douglas, when Mr. Finlayson became the accountant, and in 1858 was made a member of the council instituted by Governor Blanshard to look after the affairs of the colony.

In 1859, when Sir James Douglas severed his connection with the Hudson's Bay Company, Mr. Finlayson was made chief factor, and continued to act on the executive council until its abolition. In 1872, when the organization of the Hudson's Bay Company was changed, Mr. Finlayson retired and paid an extended visit to England, but returned to take up residence here.

Miss Finlayson was born at the old family home which still stands opposite Lemon, Gonnason mill. The estate then covered several acres and extended through to Douglas Street, but much of it has since been built over.

During her long life in Victoria, Miss Finlayson, although of a quiet and retiring disposition, became known and loved for her many philanthropic to others less fortunate. For many years she had been a devoted member of St. John's Church, and until advancing age curtailed her activities, was one of its most energetic workers.

Miss Finlayson was preceded by three brothers, Duncan, Roderick and William, and is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. C. Keith, Vancouver; Mrs. A. B. Cochrane, Victoria, and Miss Agnes Finlayson, and nine nieces.

Private funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 3:45 o'clock. It is requested that no flowers be sent.

NIGHT SCHOOL TO OPEN SOON

Registration of Students Scheduled at Victoria High School Thursday Evening

Evening technical classes, under the direction of the Victoria Board of School Trustees, will open at the High School on Thursday evening with the official enrolment of students, it was announced to-day by George Breadner, city supervisor of technical education.

Students wishing to take up the diversified courses, which range from the usual technical studies to new features, including an aviation ground course, and a special series on design and color harmony, may file their names with the officials at that session, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Full particulars on the different classes may be secured from Mr. Breadner at the school board office every day, except Saturday and Sunday, from 4 to 5 o'clock.

AVIATION COURSE

A particular appeal for those air minded will be the aviation ground course at the High School. The course, conducted by Ernest Eve, should draw those who are generally attracted to the aviation field. It is sure to take up aeronautical ground work and those who aspire to become pilots.

The purpose of the course is to give the student a general understanding of the entire field and to provide a foundation for both aeronautical engineering and practical flying. The history of aviation, aerodynamics, aircraft construction, motors, navigation, meteorology and flying regulations will be considered by the class.

In an effort to bring out originality conforming to correct principles in various phases of work, Mrs. Ina D. D. Unthoff, Diploma, Glasgow School of Art, will specialize in the principles of design, line movement, balance, rhythm and proportion in her class in design, color harmony, leather work and costumes.

DESIGN COURSE

The color harmony study will be based on the principal of "Prismatic Theory" with their color groups and contrasts, and will show how to use color scientifically and how to apply it to everyday life in dress design, interior decoration and craftsmanship.

Good line, proportion, color harmony and other features will enter into the dress design, in which the various periods of costume, from the Greek up through the Renaissance to the present day will be given special attention.

In leather work, purses, blotters and other articles will be made in calfskin and other leathers. Tooling, staining and tanning for decorative purposes will be taught.

The class will meet each Monday and Thursday evening in the physics laboratory of the High School from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock.

With but few exceptions all classes will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings.

OBJECT OF SCHOOL

They have been established to enable young men and women to continue their education beyond the limits of day school and to supplement their training for various trades and occupations.

Any person over fifteen years, not attending public school, may enroll. Usual school regulations will be observed throughout the session, which will end next March.

Among the many courses available are a continuation class leading to high school entrance, English for new Canadians, commercial courses, including preliminary work in that phase, bookkeeping, shorthand, typing, penmanship and salesmanship. Under the technical course heading, scheduled at the Central Technical School, are woodwork, sheet metal drafting and art metal work, machine shop practice, engineering, machine construction and advanced work for students who have completed the preliminary schooling in that department.

Engineering courses at the High School will include mathematics, automobile courses, electrical courses, diesel and steam engine work and building construction and architectural drawing.

Under the heading of art courses at the High School are listed Mrs. Unthoff's school of design, leather work and other branches, lettering, posters, display cards and commercial art, free drawing in charcoal, chalk or color, and anatomy.

Painting, still life and pastels will be carried on at Boys' Central School, while the course in fine arts is listed for the school board offices. That class will work in oils and water colors.

At Kingston Street School pottery and design will be taught, while at Victoria High School the household economics courses, including dressmaking, home nursing and hygiene will draw big classes. Cooking classes will be conducted at Boys' Central and a special day class in dressmaking will be held at the High School.

French, Spanish and Japanese are listed for the languages, while special courses include public speaking, short story writing, matriculation subjects, practical mathematics, lip reading, music appreciation and a class for a junior band.

GYROS TO LOOK AFTER HAMPER

The Gyro Club will again this year look after the Christmas Hamper Fund, which its members carried on so successfully for the first time last year. This decision was reached unanimously at the club luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day. The board of directors was given power to go ahead and make all arrangements.

Liberals Plan Progressive Legislation

MORE BUSINESS
Development of a uniform mining policy throughout Canada would lead to a great development in that industry which would go a long way to put the country back on the road to prosperity, said Mr. King.

Uncertainty of government policy on mine taxation and variations in different provinces were keeping capital out of Canada. This could be done away with in short order by a conference of governments.

"I venture to say," he said, "that if out of such a conference a statement could be sent to the money markets of the world as to a settled policy we would have capital flowing into Canada in short order, we would have more and more labor employed and we would have made a real start on the road to prosperity."

SECURITY NEEDED
More certainty was needed in Canada, that when capital was invested in industry it would be assured of its reward just as much as labor. There was no certainty at all the way the laws were administered now. No business man had any sense of security in carrying on his business.

"We must bring about a greater sense of security for all investments in order to bring down interest rates," said the Liberal leader.

"We need a national mining policy which will be known not only to our own people but all over the world. If we are to develop that industry in British Columbia we will have to get capital not only in Canada but in Great Britain and other countries."

Millions of pounds of British capital were now going into mining investments in South Africa. There was no reason why the same should not be the case with Canada. South Africa was prosperous as a result of the mining development under way there, but a sense of insecurity was keeping capital out of Canada. The fact that governments had something to do with mining law and administration was in part responsible for this.

If these governments in Canada had nine or ten different points of view it would be vain to hope for agreement, but eight of the provincial governments were Liberal and with a federal government at Ottawa an agreement could easily be reached.

UNIFORM STEPS
A conference could quickly decide what steps were needed to ensure uniformity across the provinces could agree to enact uniform mining laws, to maintain them for a certain period, with the Dominion giving a similar undertaking.

This policy was in line with the general Liberal policy of developing primary industries. What was true of mining was equally true of fishing, lumbering and agriculture and similar steps with respect to these industries might be taken.

Saying greater security for all classes of investments was needed in Canada, Mr. King declared a statement should be sent to the money markets of the world setting out the new policy.

PARTY UNITY ESSENTIAL
"I can tell you in my heart I am pretty radical," said Mr. King. "But I seem to be less radical than I would like to appear it is because I have a sense of responsibility and will not promise things unless I know my party will back me to the limit and enable me to carry them out."

Among the Vancouver Liberal candidates on the platform was Mayor G. G. McGeer, prominent advocate of monetary reform. At one stage Mr. King, criticizing other parties, asked who was the federal leader of the Social Credit Party and someone shouted "Gerry McGeer."

TRUE LIBERALISM
"That only shows one of the characteristics of the Liberal Party," said Mr. King. "Gerry McGeer, as everyone knows, holds advanced views. The Liberal Party would not be liberal if it did not include within its ranks men who have different shades of political opinion."

Liberal policies represented the minimum of the combined effort to which the party from coast to coast was pledged. They did not represent what might be done in addition. That depended on the men who were sent to Ottawa. If all the Vancouver Liberal candidates were elected, those of advanced views in the party would be fortunate in having strong advocates to lead the party along the path of progress.

"I can say this, however," he remarked, "if the Liberal Party returns to power we will go very much farther in the matter of legislation of this character than ever before."

CONTROL OF CREDIT
The first step in monetary reform was to get back for the government the control over credit and currency which had been given to the privately owned Bank of Canada. He warned, however, that a Conservative Senate might thwart any effort of a Liberal government to revise the structure of the bank and secure public control. The international money power, "a great empire in itself," would put up a fight.

FULL FREEDOM
"Each Liberal member is free to advocate on the floor of Parliament or in caucus any view on these matters he wishes," said Mr. King. "He may seek to persuade Parliament and his fellow Liberals. The more free and open discussion on these questions the better."

EMPIRE TRADE
Anything of advantage to Canada in the Ottawa empire trade agreements would be retained, said Mr. King, but the agreements needed revision. Trade had increased since they had come into operation, but they stood in the way of trade with countries outside the empire.

While the agreements might have caused to some extent the increase in trade with Great Britain, there were other reasons to account for the increase. In their essence they were restrictive of trade, while the Liberal party stood for removal of restrictions.

The policy of British preference was inaugurated by the Liberal party and the Liberals had twice gone down to defeat fighting for wider trade, once in 1911 for wider trade with the United States and again in 1930 for a greater British preference.

TRADE WITH U.S.
Prime Minister Bennett had an opportunity to make a trade treaty with the United States. The President had authority to conclude an agreement without consulting Congress and thus a great difficulty was removed.

"The correspondence which has just been published is the best evidence that Mr. Bennett will never conclude a trade agreement with the United States," said Mr. King. "But that an agreement can be concluded is also clearly shown in the correspondence."

LAURIER'S PREDICTION
There was no one in Canada who opposed the reciprocity treaty of 1911 more strongly than Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens. They, more than any other two men, had helped to defeat the agreement obtained by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Just after the 1911 election, Mr. King said, Sir Wilfrid, in a speech, predicted that some time the opponents of reciprocity would change their views and that even his "brilliant young friend from Calgary" (Mr. Bennett) would concede that the old Liberal leader was right.

Sir Wilfrid's prediction had come true. Mr. Bennett now asked the people to re-elect him so that he could do the very thing he would not do when an opportunity offered twenty-four years ago.

WILL NEGOTIATE
"If we return to power these negotiations with the United States will be taken up where Mr. Bennett left them," said Mr. King, "and just as surely as I have failed we will succeed."

TRADE WITH JAPAN
By his trade war with Japan Mr. Bennett had already thrown thousands of men in the lumber industry in British Columbia out of work. Mr. King charged. He asked if Japanese trade had ever injured Canada when Japan bought from Canada four times as much as Canada bought from Japan. If not, why should this trade be cut off?

"If the Liberals win this election," he said, "I can assure the people of British Columbia that the first day we are in office we will take up these negotiations and will restore trade with Japan and it will not be at the risk of any Canadian business."

Liberal policies would lead to economic recovery, said Mr. King, and recovery would provide the means to effect social reforms.

"Mr. Bennett says, 'Let us have reform and then you will have recovery.' I say the facts of the case are that recovery does not follow reform but reform follows recovery."

"No man is more anxious to remove the hazards of life, to provide security for everyone against sickness, accident, unemployment and old age than I. But I don't see how it will be possible to put through a great programme of reform unless in some way you have the treasury being filled with revenues and have the money to do things which can only be done with money from the treasury."

FOR EX-SOLDIERS
Mr. King said he had been asked to say something about the Hyndman report on unemployment among ex-service men. He understood the veterans did not wholly agree with some of the recommendations, but they could look at the record of the former Liberal government for the party's attitude towards ex-service men.

"We are prepared to implement the report," he said, "to the extent that the finances of the country will permit us."

VANCOUVER BRIDGE
On the First Narrows bridge, a live local issue, Mr. King said he could give no pledge as he was not competent to judge the matter and had no declaration from the party. But he pointed out that the bridge had been turned down and we are prepared to turn it up. That and many other decisions of the Bennett government would be reviewed in the light of the best information available.

HOTEL IN VANCOUVER
"What about the C.N.R. hotel?" asked a questioner, regarding the large hotel here built by the Canadian National Railway but never opened.

Mr. King answered that when the Liberal Party came into power in 1921 Toronto had a fine station which had never been opened because there was no business. In a short time the station was opened because business revived. "He had seen another unopened hotel in Saskatoon. If anyone wanted the reason for these two hotels standing empty they should read 'The Tragedy of Sir Henry Thornton.' A Liberal government would deal with the Canadian National Railway as it had done before 1930 and recognize it 'as just as important as any other railway.'"

WORK FOR MORE PEOPLE
"What about work and wages?" asked a voice from the gallery.

"With all my heart," said Mr. King. "I pray that what may be moving into a period of work and wages, but if we are to reach that ideal it will not be by promises, it will not be by the formation of new groups, but by the application of policies which have been tried and tested by experience."

CAPITOL THEATRE
Three major songs and a comedy number with music, similar to "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," are used in First National's new comedy, "Bright Lights," now being shown at the Capitol Theatre.

Three of the songs were written and composed by Mort Dixon and Allie Wrubel, one of the studio's song teams. The fourth was written by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, co-authors of the comedy. The songs are:

"You're An Eyeful of Heaven," a rhythmic fox-trot, sung by Patricia Ellis; "Tiddlin' Along With You," a popular ballad of the "torch" type, sung by Ann Dvorak; "Powder My Back," a typical burlesque novelty, sung by Esther Burke and members of the chorus ensemble; and "She's An Acrobat's Daughter," sung by Joe E. Brown, star of the picture, accompanied by Bill Riddle.

A cool drink from the soldier's canteen quickly revived Pat. She awoke to a scene of furious combat. British soldiers were everywhere, silently and efficiently advancing in the face of a murderous fire from natives concealed behind hastily constructed barricades.

Her companion quickly explained that a short distance away was a large field, where it was possible for the planes circling overhead to come down. There, he thought, he could signal one of the planes and put Pat in a place of comparative safety.

They hurried toward the field, the soldier half pulling Pat along with him in his haste, immune to fear of the bullets which whined about them. And up in a balcony a native sniper caught sight of Pat's red shawl. He leveled his rifle at the spot of color.

Attractiveness Often Can Be Acquired by Studying Others

Says Allure Does Not Come in Bottles

A MAN WHO possessed a stogy, commonplace but otherwise perfectly satisfactory wife complained to his family physician that she was deficient in feminine charm and grace, and wanted to know if she could not be given some sort of gland treatment that would make her glamorous and fascinating. The doctor, knowing of no prescription that would make Mary Ann into Marianna, passed the buck to the American Medical Association, whose experts replied: "There is no glandular extract which can replace the lack of inherited or required qualities of womanly charm. A girl must be born with it, or else she must learn it in youth by imitating some older woman who knows this secret or has these manners."

Thus is dissipated woman's fond belief that allure comes in bottles and jars and can be purchased at the drug store or the beauty shop. But it is a salve to her disappointment to learn on the other hand that authority that if neither surgery nor medicine can change her into a vamp, taking thought will, and she can acquire the tricks by which women confuse if she will apply herself to the task.

This is true for charm that is mental rather than physical. Often a very beautiful woman will entirely lack it, and when she does, all of her perfection of feature and figure and coloring go for naught. We admire her casually and impersonally and pass on. She has none of the magnetism that draws people to her. Not even men who are said to be drawn to beauty by magnetic hair, and that is why in every community we find so many good-looking and clever girls who never have a date and who are drifting into old maidenhood.

And, on the other hand, it explains why so many homely girls who are just the ordinary run-of-the-mill femininity are the centre of attraction wherever they go, have boys flocking around them like bees around a honey pot, and as long as they live can marry whenever and as often as they choose. They have charm. And if a woman has charm she does not need anything else, not even good looks.

Now it is as advantageous to be born with charm as it is to be born with a golden spoon in your mouth. It saves you a lot of work and worry. But just as you can make a whole set of cutlery for yourself by gumption and industry, if your Fairy Godmother neglected to drop any into your cradle, so you can acquire charm if you are willing to take the trouble to do so.

Observe, then, the charmer, study her technique. What is it about her that makes every eye brighten at her coming and every lip smile a welcome? Is it not because she is so alive, so vital, so full of pep, so enthusiastic, so interested in everything and everybody? She is human champagne bubbling over with sparkle and joy and there is something about her presence that exhilarates us.

She is not one of the shrieking sirens who always talk at the top of their voices, nor one of the tinpot gigglers nor one of the jumping-jacks on a stick that wear you out with their activities. She is just cheerful and soothing and bracing, and, somehow, seems to pour out her own abundant spirit upon you and make you feel that all's right in the best-of-all-possible good old world.

Then the charmer is never self-centred. She never takes the centre of the stage and holds it. On the contrary, she pushes you into the spotlight. She never monopolizes about herself, her children, her husband and her dogs and cats. She never tells you her troubles, nor boasts to you of her successes.

But before you know it you have told her all about your minor and major operations and the cute thing the baby said and the trouble you have had with the cook and about Mamie's engagement to the Smith boy, and she listens with such understanding and sympathy that you go away feeling that she is the most entertaining woman you have ever met, although all that she has done has been to give you the cue to your favorite topic.

The charmer never says sarcastic things that stink like a dagger thrust. She never holds people up to ridicule. She has a keen sense of humor that enables her to enjoy a good story and the clever things you say and that makes her conversation bright and amusing, but she always laughs with you and never at you. So you do not go away from her feeling that you have left your character behind you and that she is entertaining the company by making fun of all of your little peculiarities and weaknesses.

Above all, the charmer is tactful. She has a sixth sense that enables her to walk around people's pet prejudices instead of stepping on them and a divine gift for always saying the right thing to the right people. She remembers our tastes, and if she sends us a five-cent bunch of posies they are violets because they are our favorite flower. She handles us with gloves so deftly that we never know we are being managed. She never starts arguments. Never gets into fights. Never arouses enmity. In a word, she strokes our fur the right way and we purr under her hand.

And that is charm. And it is something that any woman can acquire who wants it badly enough to sacrifice her ego to get it. But the real secret of charm lies in your heart, not in your glands. DOROTHY DIX. Copyright, 1935

Uncle Wiggily's Dust Bath

By HOWARD R. GARRIS

One day, when Uncle Wiggily was sitting in his garden looking at the big bath he had put there for the robins, he noticed a little sparrow bird perch on the edge of the basin. The bird bath was a large concrete basin, like the saucer of a tea cup.

"Why don't you jump in the water, Mr. Sparrow, and get a good bath all over instead of just dipping your beak in and flipping some water on the top of your head?" asked the rabbit gentleman. For he noticed this particular sparrow was bathing that way. Some sparrows may bathe as robins do, by standing in the water and splashing themselves all over with their big wings, but this one didn't.

"Well, you see, Uncle Wiggily," chirped the sparrow, "this is my way of bathing. I am also getting myself a drink. But I am soon to take a dust bath. We sparrows are very fond of that kind of a bath."

"A dust bath?" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "Do you mean to tell me you take a bath in dust, Mr. Sparrow?"

"Oh, yes," was the answer. "You may come and watch me take a dust bath if you like."

"I shall do that," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Come along," chirped the sparrow, and Uncle Wiggily followed him to a place behind his hedges where there was a bare, no flowers or weeds grew there and the dirt was a fine, dry, dusty sand. As he reached the place Uncle Wiggily saw a number of little holes in the ground; little shallow holes filled with dust.

"It looks as if some of the animal boys had been playing the game of Baby in the Hole," said Uncle Wiggily.

"No," answered Mr. Sparrow, "these are our dust baths. We made those holes. Look, look, I'll show you."

Squatting down on the dry, dusty ground, near the holes, the sparrow bird began making a new hole by digging with his beak. At first the hole was very small, but by picking, picking at it the sparrow made it larger until he could cuddle down in it.

Once in the dust hole, the bird began fluffing his wings, tossing dust over his back with his beak and smugling down in the hole he had made until he was taking a bath in dust as robins do in water.

"I should think you would get very dirty taking a dust bath," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, the dust is so fine and dry that it is almost as clean as a feather," said the sparrow. "You don't get dirty when you dip a hole in the seashore sand, do you, Mr. Longears?"

DRIVES AWAY BUGS

"No," answered the rabbit gentleman. "I don't. I can see how some dust and dirt may be clean. And do you really think Mr. Sparrow," he asked, "that you get clean in a dust bath?"

"Indeed, we do," was the answer. "The dry dust also helps to drive away the tiny bugs that baby mosquitoes, that hide in our feathers."

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily, "a dust bath is more wonderful than I thought." And just then, all of a sudden, his sparrow friend said:

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily! Hop over here close to me! The Bob Cat is coming after you. But I'll make such a cloud of dust from my bath that he won't see you. Come, Mr. Wiggily!"

Over beside the sparrow. The clever little

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1935

With Mars powerful October begins under a planetary government that presages exciting events. On this first day of the month beneficent aspects are strong and there should be a feeling of optimism stimulating to business and social activities.

There is a sign indicating increased interest in naval affairs. This same configuration promises strengthening of coast defenses and many enlistments. Favorable aspects attend beginnings of many sorts. There will be expansion of large concerns engaged in manufacturing and merchandising.

Steel and armaments are to engage attention in many countries. Stirring reports from the East are forecast for this month. Diplomats will be busy in conferences that seem encouraging, but which may later prove futile, the seers prophesy.

The British Empire is to have added anxiety regarding certain of its colonies. Japan will be involved in serious contests to obtain domination of world markets. Although this is a fortunate rule for initiative it is not good for those who seek support. Promoters and office-seekers would do better to take a day or two off in any effort to obtain aid from persons who exercise power.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of prosperity, for Jupiter rules them, and they may profit through speculation.

Children born on this day probably will be dignified and sensitive. Subjects of this sign are studious and artistic.

Louis Untermyer, poet and journalist, was born on this day, 1885. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Lord Bellinghrook, statesman and orator; Lord Bellinghrook, diplomat, 1894; and Kirkman George Finlay, bishop, 1877. (Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

LONG VIGIL IN ARCTIC

G. Walker of Abbs of Vancouver Returns After Ten Months on Ice-locked Boat

Minneapolis, Sept. 30.—A prisoner on the ice-bound coast of the Arctic Ocean for ten long weary months when the Hudson's Bay Company power boat "Abbs" A. B. Walker, engineer of the vessel, was enjoying his first glimpse of civilization in eighteen months, over the week-end.

Abbs arrived from the north Saturday by plane and will remain here for a few days before proceeding to his home in Vancouver.

On September 15, 1924, the "Margot A." was picked her way slowly through the ice to Letty Harbor through the drift ice between Tuktoyaktuk and the eastern shore, where the dramatic suddenness, the ice closed in.

When it became certain that the boat could not get through the ice to Letty Harbor, Capt. C. H. Roberts ordered Abbs and two deckhands to remain aboard for the winter, while the skipper and two remaining members of the crew proceeded over the ice to Letty Port.

Abbs and the deckhands remained aboard the vessel from September 15 until July 26 of this year.

In January, in the midst of the most severe Arctic winter on record, the boat's coal supply gave out. Abbs made a makeshift stove and kept himself and the others from freezing by burning the ship's oil.

"I was certainly glad when the ice melted in July and we proceeded to Tuktoyaktuk and picked up Capt. Roberts and others of the crew," he said.

Tuktoyaktuk is Eskimo for caribou. The "Margot A." got through successfully this fall on her final run and is now being utilized at the Port Smith shipyard.

Abbs' mother, Mrs. J. D. Gadenhead of Vancouver, went to Port McMurray to meet her son and returned with him to Edmonton in the plane.

CREW BACK ON WAIRUNA

Magistrate in Vancouver to Decide Case of Deserting Crew of Freighter

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Thirty-one members of the crew of the New Zealand freighter Wairuna were released from the city jail Saturday to return to their ship pending decision of Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson on charges of desertion brought against them by the ship's master, Captain James Rankin.

Only one case was tried as a test and, as the conclusion, the magistrate declared the case was serious and one which did not warrant hasty decision. F. McLaren, fireman, was the only man tried.

Capt. Rankin declared the crew now under arrest had signed articles on July 1 which were effective for six months. The Wairuna sailed from Auckland, N.Z., to Vancouver and, on arrival, a delegation from the crew notified the captain they would not work aboard the ship while the case against them was pending.

On Monday, the crew of seamen and firemen walked ashore after waterfront workers started unloading the ship's cargo. Rankin testified some of them had been given leave and they were arrested Thursday afternoon on desertion charges.

In his own defence, McLaren declared it was a recognized thing in New Zealand that the ship's crew would not work if cargo was being moved by "scabs" or "free" labor.

He stated he was a member of the ship's delegation which had requested the captain to enter into an agreement not to move the ship until the present strike was settled or until he secured a release from the crew.

Unless the agreement was entered into, McLaren declared, he would be unwilling to return and work the ship. He stated the present situation had been brought about by the owners in sending the ship into Vancouver while a strike was in progress.

W. Anderson, able seaman and another of the crew, corroborated McLaren's statements and added that if the crew worked on the ship while the cargo was being unloaded by "scabs" the members of the crew faced the possibility of being "black-balled" by their own union when they returned to New Zealand.

Seattle Paper Carriers Here

Nearly 500 carriers of The Seattle Times came to Victoria yesterday and transferred to the St. Princess Elizabeth for a three-hour trip among the islands of the lower Gulf of Georgia.

They were taken on the day's outing by the newspaper company as a reward for having obtained a specified number of new subscriptions to their publication.

The party—455 carriers in all—arrived from Seattle on the regular steamer, the Princess Kathleen. They enjoyed a sumptuous repast in the ship's main dining-room and stepped from that steamer to the Elizabeth for their afternoon cruise, which was made under glorious weather conditions.

Returning to Victoria the boys had half an hour to wander near the Causeway before embarking on the return trip to Seattle.

They appeared to be having a wonderful time on their outing, which for them was a highlight of the year's activities. All were well-behaved and conducted themselves as becoming the carriers of one of the Northwest's leading dailies.

Resident Seattle, the boys came from Bellingham, Monroe, Monro, Olympia, Aberdeen and Bremerton.

Around the Docks

The Finnish bark Moshula, which was anchored in Esquimalt harbor all summer, is to-day heading out to sea, bound for Australia, where she will load a full cargo of grain and enter the famous sailing ship chase from Melbourne to London.

In tow of the St. Salvage Queen, of the Island Tug and Barge Company, the Moshula left her anchorage in Esquimalt late Saturday night. Yesterday she was left off Swiftsure, and she spread her canvas and started her long voyage.

DUE IN MORNING
With a fair list of passengers and Canadian mails for this port and a good general cargo for Seattle, the American Mail liner President Grant is expected to reach the Risset pier in the morning at 8 o'clock from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan.

LUMBER SHIP
The freighter Moshula, Capt. J. F. Barkness, which is loading 500,000 feet of lumber for Australia, at Esquimalt, is expected to leave this evening for New Westminster to complete The St. Romney, Capt. William Kyne, also expects to get out to-night for Garton and other ports in England. She has taken 1,200,000 feet of lumber at this port.

IN FOR WINTER
The Dominion Government's hydrographic survey steamer, Wm. J. Stewart, returned to her base in the Inner Harbor, at the Johnson Street bridge, yesterday morning. She came from the west coast of Vancouver Island and will not go out again until next spring. All summer the Stewart did survey work off the Queen Charlotte Islands.

FROM JAPAN
The Japanese motor liner Hige Maru passed off Victoria at 5:30 o'clock this morning on her way to Vancouver and Seattle from Japan. For the mainland port she has 1,400 tons of cargo, including 1,100 packages of raw silk. There are twenty-seven passengers for Vancouver and twenty-two for Seattle.

FROM AUSTRALIA
The St. Monowal, on her way to Victoria from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu, was 1,425 miles from this port at 5 o'clock yesterday evening. She will arrive Thursday evening or first thing Friday morning. She is taking the place of Ma. Aorangi, which is receiving overhaul at Sydney.

LATE IN SAILING
Because the outbound liner President McKinley was held several hours at the Risset pier Saturday for inspection of her engines, passengers aboard the ship were able to take in a show in town before sailing for the Orient. The liner arrived from Seattle in the afternoon on schedule, but it was midnight before she was ready to sail for Yokohama.

DUE FROM EUROPE
An arrival at Victoria this week from Europe ports will be the Loch Katrine, of the Royal Mail Lines. She is now at San Francisco and will arrive here Thursday or Friday. She is bringing passengers and cargo from Rotterdam and London.

CROSSING PACIFIC
The St. Empress of Asia has sailed from Yokohama for Victoria, and is expected to arrive here last Monday morning. The St. Empress of Japan will take this week's sailing from Victoria to the Orient, being scheduled to depart on Saturday. She will cross to Japan via Honolulu.

TRIANGLE SERVICE
It was announced over the week-end that the steamers Princess Charlotte and Princess Alice would go on the triangle service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle on October 15, replacing the Princess Marguerite and the Princess Kathleen, which have been operating all summer. There will be several minor changes in the schedule at that time.

DOCK TRUCE IS DECLARED

San Francisco Waterfront Active Again as Ban Against "Hot Cargo" Lifted

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—San Francisco's waterfront bustled with activity today as longshoremen began to load twenty-nine ships that had been tied up here because of the "hot cargo" dispute.

The ban against handling the cargo was lifted suddenly yesterday by leaders of the striking longshoremen and warehousemen whose picketing had caused the stevedores to refuse to handle it.

Representatives of the bargemen met today with employers, under the auspices of Walter G. Mathewson, Federal Labor Department mediator, in an effort to reach an agreement. The bargemen have been out on strike for several weeks, with the River Lines, operating San Joaquin and Sacramento River boats and barges, being the largest concern affected.

That stern, peaceful-looking San Francisco waterfront, which is affiliated with the International Longshoremen's Association, and which has been the scene of the "hot cargo" ban, is in the nature of a truce.

"At the request of government officials," stated said, "we have agreed to meet with the employers to negotiate our demands. In the meantime, we have agreed to lift the ban against 'hot cargo'."

Washington, Sept. 30.—Edward F. McGrady, assistant Secretary of Labor, and the United States Government's new labor trouble chaser, left by plane today for the Pacific Coast to try to stop the waterfront labor trouble there.

McGrady was going first to Los Angeles, and from there to San Francisco where, he said, reports showed that the waterfront was tied up at the docks by strike.

The Pacific Coast waterfront unions now are negotiating new wage and hour agreements for the coming year. The old agreements were extended from September 30 to October 30 to give time for the negotiations.

A strike of longshoremen in Vancouver has led to the tying up of a number of ships in Pacific Coast ports.

CHARMER MAKES FINE BONFIRE
Once Proud Ship Burned on Beach at Albert Head Saturday Evening

A smoldering mass of embers and a pile of hot steel wreckage on the beach at Albert Head are all that remains to-day of the once fine steamer Charming, pride of the northwest coastwise fleet nearly half a century ago.

Workers prepared the stripped hull of the Charming Saturday afternoon and just after dark it was ignited. It burned merrily for most of the night, casting a great red glare over the calm waters and attracting hundreds of people. Many motorists drove out to the scene and watched the great conflagration from high up on the banks of the Head.

The Charming was burned by the Capital Iron and Metals Limited for the scrap metal that was left after the ship was stripped.

Employees of the firm held a competition, in which they guessed what time the mass would fall. Frank Hall, who guessed 9:09 p.m., was correct. The ship was burning nearly two hours before the mass tumbled with a loud crash.

The Charming was one of the ships in coastwise service and operated regularly until a couple of years ago. She was built at the San Francisco plant of the Union Iron Works in 1887 and was registered at 1,944 tons, with a length of 300 feet, a beam of forty-two feet and a depth of twelve feet. She was operated for many years by the B.C. Coast Service.

Aircraft Firms In Business Deal
New York, Sept. 30.—British Aircraft Ltd. has acquired manufacturing license rights to the Sikorsky clipper flying boat, officials of the United Aircraft Corporation said today. Beyond affirming that the deal had been made with the Manchester, England, firm, United officials declined to give information about the negotiation between British Aircraft and the Sikorsky Aviation Corporation of Bridgeport, Conn., which is a United member.

United officials did not comment upon a report that the four-motored craft are desired for use in Australia-New Zealand mail, express and passenger service. Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, trans-oceanic flier, was in Bridgeport Friday during tests of the latest clipper ship. He promises there last strength to the report of the Australia-New Zealand venture.

The latest type clipper, which Sir Charles flew, has a loaded flying weight of twenty tons. The ship has a high speed, in excess of 150 miles an hour. The craft normally carries thirty-five to forty passengers on routes where the stops are not more than 1,200 miles apart.

HAS PRAISE FOR ESKIMOS

Arctic Historian, Back From Far North, Says They Are Asset to Canada

Halifax, Sept. 30.—Efforts of the Dominion Government were making the Eskimos of Canada's northlands useful and valuable citizens, in the opinion of W. G. Martin, former member of the Canadian Government and historian of the Eskimo's Arctic cruise this summer.

Mr. Martin accompanied government officials and others on the Hudson's Bay Company's steamship's annual cruise to northern outposts. Yesterday the Eskimo steamer triumphantly up Halifax Harbor, completing a 10,000-mile voyage that took her through ice packs and scantily charted channels as far north as Craig Harbor on Ellesmere Island, 950 miles from the Pole and the most northern post office in the British Empire.

"The extent of the fur trade in the north country is wonderful," said Mr. Martin, "and the Eskimos are the people who can develop this industry. They are a happy and contented people and a happy and contented people."

Major D. L. McKinnon of the Northwest Territories and Yukon, Department of the Interior, and government representative in the Arctic archipelago, reported:

"The fourteenth annual eastern Arctic patrol has successfully carried out the comprehensive itinerary for 1925. The work of the patrol which is both administrative and scientific has increased in responsibility and scope during the past four years."

Rev. Father P. L. Girard, O.M.I., returned to civilization for the first time in six years since he started his mission work in the north thirty-five years ago. His return was welcomed by his fellow missionaries and government representatives in the Arctic archipelago.

Ninety-five Eskimos from Father Girard's congregation at Pond's Inlet where his little church is built.
